CONGRESS.

The Funding Bill at Length Passed in the Senate.

Debate on the Deficiency Bill in the House.

The Administration Again Assailed and Again Defended.

Opposition of the Colored People to the Georgia Bill.

Senator Revels to Speak on Monday Against It.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The Senate, at 2 o'clock to-night, having been in continuous session since noon today, passed the Funding bill by a vote of 32 to 10. The only changes made in the bill of the Committee are that the entire series of bonds shall run for a period of forty instead of twenty years. The fifth section, providing for the payment of the coupons at foreign money centers, has been stricken out, and the amount allowed the Secretary of the Treasury to pay the expenses of negotiation has been reduced to one-half of one per centum. The section requiring the national banks to exchange their present securities for the new bonds within one year after the passage of the bill remains substantially unchanged. The new banking sections have been strengthened by limiting the amount of capital to fifty instead of one hundred thousand dollars. The passage of the bill by the Senate is a complete refutation of the rumors which have been stadiously circulated during the last two days that the bill would certainly be defeated. It has passed with very little change as it came from the Finance Committee, and that fact is a high compliment to Mr. SHERMAN and his able associates. There is a strong national bank influence at work here, which demands that the bill shall make concessions to it or suffer defeat. They don't want to be compelled to bank on the low bonds, or if they are they want a concession in the shape of a removal of the taxes on circulation and deposits. The latter point is more likely to be achieved than the former. Predictions are not lacking that the bill will be defeated in the House, as there are twenty or thirty national bank presidents and directors among its members. But if Mr. BOUTWELL wields the influence there that he is able to wield, the bill will pass without material alteration. The measure has now come to be looked upon here as a material aid in the progress toward specie payments.

THE ECONOMY OF THE ADMINISTRATION.

Mr. DAWES called up the Deficiency bill in the House today, and a warm political skirmish ensued. The Democrats tried to call Mr. DAWES to account for going up into New-Hampshire and helping to elect the Republican ticket, when they had counted him on their side and had been circulating his speeches. But Mr. DAWES met them sharply at all points, and when it came to a question of figures, he proved that his assailants didn't know one year's figures from another, and that argument with them therefore availed nothing. He maintained that the fact stands indisputable that in the twelve months which have elapsed under GRANT the expenditures have been reduced sixty millions of dollars. This was what he had told the people of New-Hampshire. Upon such facts they had again defeated the Democracy. Mr. LAWLER got in a center shot by comparing a Democratic Deficiency bill in time of peace with a Republican Deficiency bill in time of peace, showing a reduction of fifty per cent. The House then adjourned until to-morrow.

THE NEW POST-OFFICES.

It is the intention of Mr. FARNSWORTH, when the items for the Boston and New-York Post-offices are reached in the Deficiency bill, to propose an amendment placing the construction of those buildings under the control of commissions. For Boston he proposes a commission consisting of Gov. CLAFLIN, Dr. SHURTLEFF, ex-ex-Mayor of that city, and Postmaster DUNN. For New-York he has not yet decided whom to propose. It will be seen that he is not likely to recommend such a commission as the above for New-York, and this will result probably in defeating the absurd motion for either city. Gen. FARNSWORTH has been baffled and repeatedly defeated in his efforts to strike down the supervising architect of the Treasury, and considering the practical sense and shrewdness which he usually exhibits, it is some what strange that he should not have discovered that the influence near him which makes itself most strongly felt on this subject is the clinging of malice, hatred and personal vindictiveness, which, when it cannot accomplish what it desires, resorts to calumny, falsehood and other more questionable agencies to effect its object.

THE GEORGIA BILL.

The passage of the Georgia bill in the House with the Bingham proviso has alarmed the colored men of Georgia, and a delegation of the colored representatives in the Legislature will be here to-morrow night to urge the passage of the bill with the proviso stricken out. The bill will come up on Monday, and Senator REVELS then proposes to make his debut as a speaker. He will address himself to this question, and will doubtless have a large and attentive audience. Mr. REVELS today presented a memorial from the colored members of the Georgia Legislature, protesting against the bill as it stands at present, and asking for its rejection. The Governor of Georgia and Gen. BUTLER are very busily engaged at present in endeavoring to secure the defeat of the amendment. Both these gentlemen have spent several hours on the floor of the Senate chamber for the last two days, canvassing the votes of Senators, and urging all sorts of arguments against the proviso. The result is doubtful.

THE TARIFF.

Gen. SCHENCK having got the House into Committee of the Whole on the tariff last week, in order to let Mr. BROOKS make his speech, the Democrats returned the courtesy today, and the House went into Committee to let Mr. MCCARTHY make his speech, which was mainly devoted to a defense of the duty upon salt. Mr. MCCARTHY insists that he advocates only a tariff for revenue; but if so, he takes a different course to accomplish his ends than do many who are laboring in the same direction. So far as known, he has voted for every provision of the new Tariff bill which increases the rate of duty either directly or by the change of the system from ad valorem to specific.

THE RIGHTS OF CITIZENS.

The House Judiciary Committee have agreed to report a very important bill to define and enforce the rights of citizens of any State in the several States. It is based upon section 2, article 4 of the Constitution of the United States, which provides that the citizens of each State shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of citizens in the several States; and it provides, in substance, that all corporations created by the Legislature of any State, and doing business in the territory of any other State, shall be entitled to all the rights, privileges, &c., guaranteed by the Constitution to the citizens of the several States. The effect of the bill, if it becomes a law, will be to abolish discriminating taxes or regulations now imposed by a State upon corporations of other States, such as are now imposed upon fire and life insurance companies, railroads, &c. It is believed that it will also apply to commercial travelers. It will be remembered that the Supreme Court, in deciding the gas capsule railroad tax of Maryland unconstitutional, took a step in the direction which this bill is designed to confirm.

POSITION OF THE CUBAN QUESTION.

The professional jobbers put about a report this morning that the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House would today report in favor of belligerent rights to Cuba. In less than an hour scores of dispatches came here from Wall-street announcing "Gold up two per cent. Is the Cuban report true?" So far from being true, it is a fact that no vote on the subject has yet been taken by the Foreign Affairs Committee, and it is not by any means certain that the vote will be favorable to Cuba when it is taken. Gen. BANKS has presented the subject very fully to the Committee in an exhaustive report, and it has been discussed, but no conclusion reached. On Monday the Committee will meet to give the subject further special consideration, and they have asked the Secretary of State to furnish, in the meantime, the very latest information he has at hand covering the status of affairs on the island.

BRIDGEPORT HARBOR.

A delegation of gentlemen from Bridgeport, Conn., consisting of the Mayor of that city, Mason Hawley, John D. Candee, Ferris Bishop, John H. Hanmer, S. C. Nickerson, Thomas Crossley, Capt. J. S. Brooks, Capt. McNeil, and James E. Dunham, appeared before the River and Harbor Committee of the House today, to urge the passage of an appropriation for the improvement of the harbor of that city. They presented their views to the Committee, at length, and were promised full consideration of their claim when the Committee reached that portion their work. These gentlemen also had an audience of the President this morning, which is reported to have been very satisfactory to them.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

THE YERGER CASE.

In the Supreme Court, today, Mr. PHILLIPS stated that the counsel for YERGER, who was convicted by a Military Commission of the killing of Col. CRAWFORD, and sentenced, having received authentic information that the military authorities had turned over the prisoner to the civil authorities of the State of Mississippi, the object of the petition was fulfilled, and therefore he moved that it be dismissed.

NOMINATIONS.

The following nominations were sent to the Senate this afternoon:

THE SAN DOMINGO TREATY.

The Committee on Foreign Relations held a special meeting to-day to consider the San Domingo treaty. Gen. BABCOCK explained its provisions and the circumstances under which it was negotiated. Other facts were communicated to the Committee, who evince no disposition to come to an early conclusion, but will take full time to consider this important subject.

FORTY-FIRST CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

SENATE.....WASHINGTON, Friday, March 11.

Mr. FENTON presented a memorial from importers and growers of sand, &c., for an amendment of the Tariff bill so as to forbid the importation of these articles free of duty.

GEORGIA.

Mr. REVELS forwarded to the Clerk and had read a communication from colored Senators and members of the Georgia Legislature, which he had received by telegraph, protesting against the adoption by the Senate of the BINGHAM amendment to the Georgia bill.

The communication represents that the results of the election in Georgia, held last fall, into the hands of their worst relentless enemies, and protests against it in the name of plunder, disfranchisement of loyal citizens, and insulting contempt of the Congress of the United States, and adds that the jury laws and sheriffs will not be a sufficient expression of political views at the next election.

On motion of Mr. TRUMBULL, the Georgia bill was made the special order for to-morrow, or as soon as the Funding bill shall be disposed of.

NAVAL SERVICE.

Mr. DRAKE introduced a bill to promote the efficiency of sufficient seamen for the navy of the United States.

It provides for the examination, every year, by each Representative and Delegate to Congress of one boy in his district, not more than sixteen years of age, for appointment, after examination, as a naval apprentice, who shall attend the school on board the receiving ship, and then receive promotion to the grade of United States seaman. Seamen now or hereafter enlisted in the navy may, after five years of service, and on the recommendation of their officers, be made appointment as United States seamen. This class shall be eligible to promotion as warrant officers, and be entitled to certain distinctive privileges.

Referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

INTERNATIONAL TELEGRAPHY.

Mr. FENTON introduced a bill to regulate international correspondence by telegraphic lines between the United States and foreign countries.

It provides that the following rules shall govern all telegraph lines now or hereafter established between the United States and any foreign territory: All persons shall have the right to correspond by means of the international telegraph lines of the United States Government shall enjoy the same rights and privileges in the use and control of said lines as are granted foreign Governments; the United States shall have free use of all lines under the control of any foreign Government; no Government shall use the lines longer than one hour at a time if another Government demands to send a message; the lines shall be kept open to send a message, for a time not to be longer than one hour, if demanded; all messages shall be transmitted in order of reception, except that dispatches of the United States Government, and of foreign Governments, shall have priority; messages shall be given priority; the United States Government reserves the right to stop the transmission of dispatches addressed to persons within the limits of the United States and contrary to law and morals or giving due notice to the Telegraph Bureau where they originated, and also the right to suspend the service of the international telegraph lines in emergencies; if it judges necessary, either in a general manner or for certain kinds of dispatches or messages; violators of secrecy shall subject the employees of companies to fines and imprisonment, the fines, if unpaid, to be collected from the company; the decisions of the Attorney of each State shall be in the jurisdiction of the United States; prosecutions for penalties, and be recovered accordingly; the rates of compensation for messages by such lines shall be fixed by the postal authorities of the United States and the countries connected by them, together with the owners of the cable; the Government of the United States may, at any time, take over the property of the Telegraph Company, at the United States, and it is so of cancellation of lines, that office in the absence of an international Convention regulating the matter, shall determine the rates to be charged. The Attorney-General of Connecticut, Mr. HARLAN, of Iowa, and Mr. THURMAN, of Ohio, addressed the Senate upon the objectionable features of the bill, Mr. HOWE's amendment was not agreed to—yeas 16, nays 28.

Mr. BAYARD moved to strike out the fourth section, declaring that the new bonds and the annual income thereon shall be exempt from national, State and local taxation.

A motion by Mr. THURMAN to strike out the words "and annual income thereon" was defeated—yeas 14, nays 29.

Mr. BAYARD's motion was also defeated—yeas 7, nays 36.

Mr. CAMERON offered an amendment for the redemption on the first of July, 1870, of the fractional currency of the United States.

Not agreed to—yeas 16, nays 26.

Mr. MORTON proposed an amendment to remedy a discrimination in the bill by which the old banks would be allowed to retain ten per cent. more currency than was allowed to the new banks. Not agreed to.

Mr. SCOTT proposed an amendment restricting the sale of the new bonds to officers of the Treasury, with an additional provision limiting the commission for preparing and disposing of the bonds to one half of one per cent. Not agreed to.

A motion by Mr. WILSON to fix the commission at one-half of one per cent, after rejecting (in favor by Mr. CASSERLY, was carried by yeas 28 to nays 20.

Mr. MORTON moved to strike out the last section authorizing the issue to the banks of the new bonds, upon their depositing the required amount of notes. He opposed the section, because it would allow the greenbacks to be put into an interest bearing bond. The motion was defeated by yeas 13, nays 29.

The bill was then reported to the Senate as amended, and passed by yeas 32, nays 10. The following is the vote by which the Funding bill passed:

YEAS—Messrs. Anthony, Brownlow, Buckingham, Cameron, Conkling, Corbett, Davis, Berry, Hamlin, Howard, Howe, Howe, Morrill of Maine, Morrill of Vermont, Pomeroy, Ramsey, Scott—14.

NAYS—Messrs. Bayard, Bogman, Casserly, Chandler, Cole, Drake, Fowler, Gilbert, Harlan, Howell, Kelly, Kellogg, Morrill of Maine, Morton, Pool, Pratt, Revels, Rice, Ross, Sohurz, Sherman, Stewart, Stockton, Sumner, Thayer, A. G. Thurman, Tipton, Trumbull, Warner, Willey, Williams—32.

Mr. SUMNER moved to insert an additional section providing that on the premium on gold falling below par cent, the Secretary of the Treasury shall give public notice that the legal tenders shall be received at par for custom duties, and further, declaring specie payments.

Mr. SPRAGUE supported the proposition at some length.

The motion of Mr. SUMNER was not agreed to.

Mr. HOWE moved an amendment to the third section to authorize banks to be organized on a capital of $50,000 instead of $100,000. Agreed to.

Mr. HOWE then moved an amendment to require the banks to receive in exchange for their deposits one third of the amount in new bonds, and in satisfactory notes, compelling them to receive the entire amount in such bonds.

After remarks by Messrs. CAMERON, DRAKE and SPRAGUE upon the objectionable features of the bill, Mr. HOWE's amendment was not agreed to—yeas 16, nays 28.

Mr. MORTON moved to strike out the fourth section, declaring that the new bonds and the annual income thereon shall be exempt from national, State and local taxation.

A motion by Mr. THURMAN to strike out the words "and annual income thereon" was defeated—yeas 14, nays 29.

Mr. BAYARD's motion was also defeated—yeas 7, nays 36.

Mr. CAMERON offered an amendment for the redemption on the first of July, 1870, of the fractional currency of the United States.

Not agreed to—yeas 16, nays 26.

CUBAN AFFAIRS.

ARRIVAL OF THE HAVANA STEAMSHIP COLUMBIA.

The steamship Columbia, from Havana March 8 via Nassau, N. P., reached this port yesterday. By the courtesy of Purser MAGNA, our correspondence and files were promptly on hand. Our regular letter follows.

Surrender of Gen. Napoleon Arango—Jordan's Resignation—Bembeta and Cespedes—Filibusters—Santa Anna—War News—The Greenwald Murder.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HAVANA, Saturday, March 4, 1876.

The surrender of Gen. NAPOLEON ARANGO, and the reported resignation of Gen. JORDAN, offer food for conjecture as to the ultimate result of the war and the present condition of the Cubans. Gen. ARANGO, one of the most talented and influential, if not the most influential Cuban in the Central Department, surrendered voluntarily to the Spanish forces on the 27th ult. He inaugurated and organized the revolution in Puerto Principe and the Central Department, and commanded the Cuban forces there for some time as General in Chief, but disgusted with the acts of his companions, and perhaps hurt at some real or fancied slight, he resigned his command and retired within the Cuban lines, where he has since resided, always plotting against QUESADA and GARRAYA, and once on the point of being shot by his countrymen, a brother of his having been killed for supposed complicity with the Spaniards, or on some similar charge. The surrender of ARRANGO is of the utmost importance. Although he held no actual command at the time, his family connections, and personal relations with the most prominent Cuban families of the Central Department, and his immense influence being such as to make his defection of the Cuban cause of the greatest moment to the Spaniards. It will probably cause a great deal of mischief among the Cubans. The brothers remained behind, charged with the very dangerous mission of gathering a number of prominent friends and bringing them within the Spanish lines. All those they intended to bring in belong to the so-called Caonao faction, who are opposed to CESPEDES, AQUILERA, QUESADA, BEMBETA, and the rest of the Bayamo Party. ARRANGO had a hard time in getting within the Spanish lines, troops having left in different directions from Las Minas to receive him, but he was so hotly pursued by BARNETE that he was obliged to change his route several times. If caught, there is little doubt but that he would have been executed as traitor.

JORDAN'S RESIGNATION.

Within the past few days several letters have been received from Puerto Principe and also one from your Neuvitas correspondent announcing as a positive fact that JORDAN had resigned the Generalship of the Cuban armies, and that Gen. BEAUVILLIERS, his chief of staff and commander of the artillery, had followed suit. The information is startling but not improbable, and the cause can easily be guessed at. The party opposed to QUESADA has not been found strong enough to maintain their partisans in power, and JORDAN undoubtedly preferred to act under some Cuban, although virtually all operations will be directed by him and the responsibility assumed by others.

JORDAN'S SUCCESSOR

is reported to be M. BERNARD VARONA alias Bembeta, a young Cuban about twenty-four years of age, a native of Puerto Principe, and connected with the revolution from its beginning. As a military man he is not very remarkable, but his bravery, enthusiasm and devotion to the Cuban cause are unequalled. BEMBETA is the beau idéal and true representative of fighting Cuba, and has none of the attributes of talking Cuba. A republican and patriot from conviction, a thorough abolitionist and advocate of equal rights for all men, he has been a prominent figure for some time, and there is no doubt but that he will be able to infuse new life and spirit into the Cubans in the field. Ambitious and yet modest, he is cool during a fight, and although a mere boy, has thrown nearly all others into the shade by his sagacity and valor. BEMBETA is a regular Red Republican, such as are only produced and can rise to eminence during periods of civil war and dissensions. If his appointment is proven, there is no doubt but that soon we will hear of attacks and fights in every section of the Island.

FILLIBUSTERS.

The Herald expedition has not been a success, and GOICURIA has again been unfortunate. The latest news from Holquin announces that only twelve out of thirty-two remain, twenty having lost their lives; the bodies of two, who died from starvation, were found in the mountains half eaten by hogs. Of GOICURIA himself, nothing positive is known. Among the killed is Col. ASHBY, from New-York. The telegram from New-York, announcing that the United States Marshal had stated on oath that no fillibustering had been or was organizing in New-York, made the authorities laugh. Gen. RODAS received a telegram on Sunday announcing the departure of a steamer, of which I have forgotten the name, which left on Saturday the 26th, with the intention of landing her freight and passengers at Bahia Honda, in the Vuelta abajo region. The Colombian brought lists containing the names of all Cubans and Americans who had sailed on that steamer. On Thursday Admiral MALCAMPO left this port on the man-of-war Hernando Cortez, accompanied by four gun-boats, to watch the coast, in addition to the cruisers, and yesterday the fast steamer Charrua departed on the same errand. If the steamer with the expedition should land at or near Bahia Honda, the capture and destruction of the entire expedition may be considered certain; but I am of opinion that the expedition will not land there, but lower down the coast, and that the Spaniards will know of it when too late.

SANTA ANNA

has come to grief, all efforts made in his behalf by persons known to be strongly in favor of France and the Mexican Church Party to allow him to go to Mexico having failed. RODAS was firm, and stated to all who came to intercede on behalf of the old intriguer that he and his Government were at peace with the lawful Government of Mexico, represented by JUAREZ, and that under no circumstances would he permit any infraction of international law. As the Nassau mail steamer does not leave until Saturday next, and the General being very anxious to get SANTA ANNA off his hands, he ordered the sloop of war Pozos to get ready for sea, and take him to Nassau, which plan was carried into effect on Sunday morning. Your correspondent went to the Europa Hotel, where SANTA ANNA had been residing, and witnessed his departure. A boat from a man-of-war was in readiness at the landing; several prominent Mexicans and a few Spaniards were in waiting to bid SANTA ANNA good by. The old agitator appeared angry and sullen, returned the salutations his friends in a polite but not over cordial manner, stepped into the falua, accompanied by his servant and Col. PORTOCARRERO, his former adjutant, and within an hour was at sea. It appears that SANTA ANNA has some intention of leaving Nassau in a schooner, and proceeding from thence direct to Vera Cruz. At any rate, he will not remain any length of time at Nassau. Another reported plan of his is to enter into some arrangement with the Cuban Junta at Nassau; but as neither is at present in a position to help each other much, the plan will not amount to anything. Rumor has it that Gen. JAMES WATSON WEBB, who leaves for Nassau on Saturday next, has some connection with the Santa Anna business.

WAR NEWS.

In the Cinco Villas, bodies of armed and unarmed insurgents surrender daily to the Spanish troops; after taking the oath of allegiance they are permitted to go about their business instead. The most important surrender was that of JOSE MARTINEZ, who surrendered himself with 26 followers, at Santa Clara. Some of his men were armed with rifles and others with the machete, whilst many were unarmed. This band had come from the Puerto Principe region. If these surrenders should continue, the fate of the revolutionists will be strongly effected. The expected movements of PUELLO and GOYANEGUI against the main body of the insurgents have not taken place yet, although both Generals are on the march. If they win this last battle the Cuban army stands a good chance of [illegible] in the field.

THE GREENWALDER MURDER.

This extraordinary and brutal affair has been solved at last, and in a manner highly complimentary to the cause of honor and justice of the Spanish officials, from the Captain-General down. Gen. ROMANA and Chief of Police LABARDERA were at work ever since the committal of the deed, to hunt up evidence, arrest all parties suspected, and disentangle the mystery. If the present condition of affairs and the fact that LAMORA was a volunteer in talent this account, bribes and threats were used to frighten off witnesses. Money was spent by SAMORA's friends and companions to stifle the affair. The principal witnesses refused to identify in a plain manner to what they really knew, and others, after speaking, failed to verify their assertions. But RODAS made himself master of the situation, brought every spoke of the Government wheel to bear against the vile, and on Tuesday the case had gone far enough to warrant the assembling of a Court-martial.

The members assembled yesterday morning, the room being crowded with witnesses and spectators, many foreign Consuls being also present at the invitation of the Captain-General. The trial lasted until night. At 7 o'clock this morning the members brought in their verdict of guilty. At 9 the Captain-General had approved the sentence. At 9 the order was given to place the criminal in capilla, i.e. a small chapel where all prisoners condemned to death are brought to previous to execution, in order to confess and pray, and at 4 this afternoon a volley of rifle balls will speed the spirit of LAMORA into eternity. Such is justice as administered by RODAS, and even the most blinded sympathizer with the revolution is compelled to confess that the assertion of RODAS that he will execute justice without fear or favor, is not a mere idle boast. The young men who were with GRUNWALD on the day of the murder, leave to-day by the Columbia, and if they listen they will hear on starting the shots which avenge their companion's death.

CURRENT NOTES.

Charleston, S. C., has eleven steam fire engines.

Notwithstanding all their bitter experiences in the war, some of the Southern cities still shell their roads.

The White Pine News informed its readers that Prince ARTHUR passed through Elko, on his way to San Francisco, incognito, on the 28th ult.

Keene (N. H.) voted again on Tuesday that it is not yet ready to become a city. There were 791 negative votes to 107 affirmative.

California has a new paper, called the Weekly Democratic Phantom. The negro acted for years in that capacity, but as he is hereafter to vote it is necessary to have a new one.

A State Temperance Convention, to be composed of two delegates from each Assembly District, is to be held in Albany on Wednesday next.

Controller ALLEN's opinion is that mortgages given before the passage of the Legal Tender act are payable in coin—that such payment can be compelled.

The Troy ice dealers gathered last year 30,000 tons of ice. This year they say they will get but 20,000 tons, and they report that they must double last season's prices to consumers.

A man in Somerset County, Del., who bought his coffin two years ago, became discouraged on Thursday, feeling that he was losing the interest on his investment, and with a knife cut his throat. His wounds are not fatal.

The Troy Times has a local article headed, "The Horse Thieves' Carnival—Stolen Horses Recovered." Unquestionably, when the steeds were seized the thieves cried farewell to their horse flesh.

Rhode Island has had twenty-one Governors since 1807, and the portraits of all of them are to be procured, at private expense, for the State Capitol, originals having been found in their families.

The College Courant remarks that "it is not very gentlemanly to keep on snow balling in the lecture-room after Dr. SAYRE'D has requested the class to stop." It is to be hoped "it" will take the hint.

The tea used in San Francisco, which is claimed to be the best in the world outside of the place of production, is generally put up in paper packages, caddies, and small boxes and pans.

There will be very few lawyers in the next New-Hampshire Legislature. Manchester, Concord, Nashua and Keene send but one each, and there is a much smaller number than usual from other portions of the State.

The Indianapolis Journal intimates pretty strongly that Hon. JOHN A. LOGAN, who will not be a candidate for reelection as Congressman at large, is looking out for the succession to Senator YATES.

The Houston Telegraph opposes the division of Texas, saying that the people are too poor, the property of too small value to be heavily taxed, and the population too sparse to sustain more than one State Government.

The Boston Post asserts that the injudicious interference of a New-Yorker between man and wife "cost him a bullet perforated shoulder." The Post is slightly in error. The interfering New-Yorker still retains possession of his shoulder, although it is bullet perforated.

The Charleston (S. C.) News reports that the amount due to depositors by the banking firm of S. T. JONES & Co., of Newbern, N. C., which recently suspended, was $45,000, and the available assets nearly $27,000. It was thought that the creditors would be fully repaid, and at a recent meeting they adopted resolutions permitting the firm to continue their business as heretofore.

In one of Mr. LINCOLN'S first cases he appeared to defend a man accused of murder. Circumstantial evidence told strongly against the prisoner, but having suddenly and unexpectedly received succor Mr. LINCOLN arose and said that, as the case stood, he could not look for anything but a verdict against his client, but he asked permission to put a new and very material witness upon the stand. He then called his witness, who proved to be the "murdered" man.

The Kingston (N. Y.) Argus relates a story of a somewhat economic, but very zealous and sincere Christian in that place, who recently attended a revival meeting in a neighboring town, and raised his voice in exhortation to the unrepentant, in language earnest and eloquent. He sat down amid manifest marks of approval, but suddenly it occurred to him that he had forgotten something, whereupon he arose and said: "I omitted to say that if any one desires to see me at any time, I can always be found at the store of ——in Kingston, where all kinds of dry goods may be obtained at reasonable prices."

The Providence Journal relates that when THURSELL visited Rhode Island, early in the present century, to procure a portrait of Gov. STEPHEN HOPKINS for his great picture of the Declaration of Independence, none could be found. But many persons who had known Gov. HOPKINS, declared that his grandson, who appeared representative in him, THURSELL, therefore took a portrait of the younger HOPKINS for the painting, and for this reason did not give him a prominent place in the foreground of his picture, but placed him in the distance with a broad brimmed hat on, as he was a Quaker.

Col. SAM. TATE, President of the Mississippi Central Railroad, has published a long official statement respecting the recent disaster on that road. He says: "It was simply one of those unfortunate accidents that has come by the breaking of machinery when the train was running at regular schedule speed, but happened at a most unfortunate spot, where the cars fell a distance of forty feet, and it is well known that no cars are or can be built to stand a fall of that distance without being smashed up, especially when going at the rate of twenty miles an hour, which speed is demanded by the public, and is not unusual."

[illegible] Gold Exchange was intensely excited [illegible] yesterday, in consequence of an advance in the price of gold, and the various quarters devoted to the purchase and sale of articles which are immediately affected by the fluctuations in gold were also unusually excited.

As was intimated in the TIMES of yesterday morning, an upward movement was inevitable, for it was apparent on Thursday afternoon that the "bulls" were organizing for a grand demonstration which was intended to put an end to the low rates for the present. The cotton operators were understood to have combined with the gold "bulls" for the purpose of advancing the price, and, it was asserted, hoped by their united influence to put the premium up. Singularly enough, there were several causes which operated to favor the "bulls" yesterday, and they were not slow to take advantage of them. Gold closed on Thursday afternoon at 111¼. By the time the operators had concluded their transactions in the room at 5¾, gold was selling at 112¼—an advance of one per cent. after the regular closing of the Board. The market was strong, the fluctuations had not been extreme during the late hours of the afternoon, and there were many indications that the "bulls" were once more gaining the ascendency.

THE ADVANCE YESTERDAY.

The operators entered the Exchange yesterday morning with the avowed purpose of putting an end to the low rates which had prevailed for the past two weeks, and the "bulls" went at it with a will from the start. Before the regular opening of the Board the price ranged from 112¼ to 113, and at 10 o'clock the latter was the first price recorded. In three minutes the rate was run up to ¼, and in five minutes more had reached to 113¾. The "bears" here seemed to take courage and succeeded by 11 o'clock in forcing the price down to 113⅜, but they struggled vigorously to accomplish this, and only succeeded by the sacrifice of large amounts. In this movement the "bears" were aided by the outside "short" interest, which, though small, was sufficient to lend a helping hand in the emergency.

From 11 to 12 o'clock the movement was upward, with fluctuations between 113⅝ and 113¾. Soon after 12 the price reached 113 again, and kept on its advance to 113¾—the fluctuations between 12 and 1 o'clock being from 113⅛ to 113¾. The lots thrown out up to this hour were heavy on both sides, and the contest was kept up with unabated fury. It was a fierce struggle, and while it was being carried on the din was almost deafening.

THE EFFECT.

The spectators in the gallery looked on in blank astonishment at the sudden turn things were taking; merchandise brokers in the "Street" glanced at the constantly changing figures on the indicators in their offices, or listened to the reports of the changes as brought in by their messengers, and replied with an ominous shake of the head; transactions were temporarily suspended in all goods, the price of which is affected by the fluctuations in gold, and every body fell to discussing the advance in the premium. The effect was perceptible in the specie brokers' offices, especially among the crowd that thronged them for the purpose of procuring silver coin with which to keep up their voluntarily assumed specie payments. Of course these purchasers of hard cash could put divine the reason for the advance in gold and the consequent advance in silver, and, deeming it one of the "tricks of the trade," were very indignant. They wished to keep up their reputation and fulfill their promises to pay specie, but felt that they could not possibly stand it to see the heavy premium demanded for the precious metal. One remarked: "If this thing is going up in this way we may as well stop paying specie at once, and not lose any more money." Another said: "I think this must be a trick of these brokers to put the price of specie up, for we know the people are beginning to demand it." Another came to a wise conclusion, and said he "would give change to his customers in new stamps instead of old currency or silver, and thought that his patrons would be just as well satisfied." Accordingly he hastened to the currency room of the sub-treasury, where he exchanged the money he intended for the purchase of coin for clean, crisp currency, and departed well satisfied.

Our "Sir Oracle," who always has a reason for every thing, remarked that if this rise in gold went on it would ruin the country. He said: "I hold contracts to sell specie to-morrow, and have marked down their goods in consequence of the decline will mark them up; those who have been paying specie in change will stop disbursing it; articles of necessity will advance in price, and the tradesmen, having learned a severe lesson, will be able to again realize fabulous prices for goods." His auditors replied: "That is so," and departed with long faces.

SOME REASONS FOR THE ADVANCE.

One reason assigned for the advance yesterday was the action of Congress on the Funding bill yesterday, which, it was said, had influenced an advance in bonds on the other side, and in this way driven large operators in bonds into the gold market where they hoped to cover their losses by realizing upon the gold they had purchased when the premium was low. Another reason was a rumor which was prevalent about 1 o'clock, that a majority of the Committee on Foreign Affairs had expressed themselves in favor of the recognition of Cuban belligerency. When all else fails the Cuban business seems to be sure to affect the market, and it had its intended effect yesterday. Under the operation of this rumor gold was "bulled" vicariously, so that at 1:22 it touched 113¾—an advance of one per cent. since 12:10. This was enough to set the operators almost wild, and for a few moments the scenes in the room were most exciting. The tumult subsided, however, very soon, and at 3:03 the price touched 113 again.

ANOTHER RUSH UPWARD.

From this point the advance was steady. The "bulls" now seemed to have gathered in force for a grand rush upon the enemy's works, which they succeeded in effecting at 3:45 by the following resolutions:

Resolved, That, in our judgment, the doubt and dissatisfaction of the Church cannot be removed until the Church is put in possession of the facts as shown in the report.

Resolved, That in view of conflicting statements which have been given to the Church and the public from the Book Committee in the recent heretofore unknown, and, as we believe, unprecedented action of a committee, by commission or other wise, in advance of the General Conference, if possible, if not before, then under its direction, and that such investigation shall be made by a committee of the Church, by the "consolidated exhibit" contained in the "exhibit of the Methodist Book Concern," which follows the "annual report of the Book Committee."

Resolved, That the thanks of the Church are due the minority of the Book Committee for respecting the call of the Church for facts, and also for asserting the right of the minority to report to the Conferences, and thus giving an additional guarantee to the Church for the integrity, economy and success of our great publishing interest. The following was also adopted:

Resolved, That as a result of the action of our Book Room affairs in New-York, certain facts were developed, containing or compelling the resignation of one of the employés of the concern (Rev. Dr. Lanahan), to our great regret, and that the Committee of November, 1868, and the minority report of the same Committee in February, 1870, relieve seriously upon the official character of said employé; and

Resolved, That we, the members of the Sunday school Union, with these facts before them, and without any testimony known to us contradicting this man from all blame in the "absent leave" in the Book Room, hereby tender our sympathy to the Sunday-school Union of our Church; therefore,

Resolved, That all the moneys collected for the Sunday-school Union by the members of the Conference, from now to the Sunday-school Convention, be retained by the body in the hands of the Conference Treasurer until the Sunday-school Board of our Church at New-York shall appoint a Treasurer commanding the confidence of the entire Church.

"Law and Lawyers"—Lecture by C. B. Dingwaney, Esq.

Our old and respected fellow citizen, CORL B. DINGWAY, Esq., delivered a lecture last evening before the "Bloomingdale-on-the-Hudson Lyceum on "Law and Lawyers."

After briefly referring to the several divisions of law comprehended under the general term, the lecturer confined his remarks to the municipal law—its composition, the unwritten common law of England, lex non scripta, and the statute law, lex scripta, and the canon and civil law. He explained how far these laws were recognized as authority in this country. He spoke also of equity—its rules—and in what respects it differs from the rules of law. These various points the speaker elucidated in a manner that seemed satisfactory to the audience.

With respect to lawyers, he dwelt on the dignity and usefulness of their profession, and, having been one of the great civil lights in former days—THOMAS ADDIS EMMET, JOHN WELLS, DAVID B. OGDEN, JOSIAH OGDEN HOFFMAN, and others—he dilated on the various styles of the eloquence of these distinguished men. And so of more somewhat later—HUGH MAXWELL and WILLIAM J. FERRIS. And later still, CHARLES O'CONOR, JAMES W. GERARD, and others, alike distinguished for their high legal attainments, their honorable principles and their eloquence; and still later, JAMES T. BRADY, the glory of the New-York Bar. The speaker also alluded to the active living members of the profession, well known for their ability, acute reasoning and eloquence—WILLIAM M. EVARTS, EDWIN W. STOUGHTON, DAVID DUDLEY FIELD, and others who would be a credit to the Bar of any age of State.

The lecturer defended the lawyers against the common charges of want of integrity, etc., insisting that they were as honest and as honorable and irreproachable as any other. He closed his remarks by dwelling upon the singular state of things that would exist with us, had we the same rules as they have in Wyoming—women serving as Grand Jurors—or as it said to be the case in Iowa of a lady being admitted to practice as a lawyer, and her husband being of the same profession, the sign of business being "Mrs. ARCHIBALD A. MANSFIELD and her Husband, Attorneys-at-Law."

The speaker was attentively listened to, and we trust his lecture will be of benefit to all who heard it.

Grammar School No. 36—Graduating Exercises.

The graduating exercises of the senior class of Grammar School No. 36, Female Department, took place yesterday at the school-house in Eighteenth-street, near Ninth-avenue, commencing at 2 o'clock. The large hall of this splendid new building was filled to overflowing with the friends of the class and others interested in the proceedings. School Commissioner A. A. Lawrence presided, and about ten on the stand were Hon. J. W. Gerard, Hon. James Kelley, Hon. Nelson J. Waterbury, Rev. Dr. Alexander R. Thompson, Gen. Alexander S. Webb, Superintendents Harrison and Riddle, and others well known for their interest in the common schools of the City. The graduating class was a fine looking company of girls, nineteen in number, and their part of the exercises consisted of written compositions and singing. The compositions were graceful essays, exceedingly well written, and delivered with fine taste and spirit. The singing was also very pleasing, and the entire exercises reflected great credit on the excellent training received by the girls from the Principal of the School, Miss MARY A. SIMES, who is widely known and admired for her superior tact and ability as a teacher.

The diplomas were presented by Assistant Superintendent HENRY KIDDLE, who spoke in the highest terms of the character of the school and the efficiency of this particular class. He said that they had passed through fifteen grades in reaching the position which they then held, and all along had received a thorough discipline, as well as useful acquirements. He also alluded to the fact that this was the newest and finest school building in the City. Hon. NELSON J. WATERBURY presented the Kelly medals in a jubilatious speech to Misses MARY WAIN and ELLA KISSAM. These medals are two in number, one of silver and the other bronze, presented by Hon. JAMES KELLEY, on the award of the class.

THE METHODIST BOOK CONCERN.

The Recent Investigation in the Management—Action of the Baltimore Conference.

The Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, now in session at Frederick, has thoroughly endorsed the course of Rev. JOHN LANAHAN, relative to the Book Concern troubles at New-York, and has also signified its approval of the action of Rev. HENRY SLICER, and the other members who signed the minority report on the subject, which sustained Mr. LANAHAN.

At Tuesday's session of the Conference the report of the Committee to whom was referred majority and minority reports of the Book Committee was presented, and was unanimously adopted. The report says:

"The conclusions of the majority report are not only in opposition to those of the November report, in several vital points, but are in direct conflict with the conclusions of the minority report. The majority report gives no evidence. It assumes that it did examine all the testimony carefully, and presents its conclusions, but withholds the testimony. It does not even give an outline of the evidence, but states that its conclusions were reached "after two weeks of search for truth." This is not questioned by us, nor do we discredit the integrity and ability of those reverend brethren, but we are compelled to say that their conclusions are insufficient without evidence.

At this point we turn to the minority report. This dissents from the positions of the majority. With the same facts and testimony before them, the signers of the minority report are satisfied that the charges offered relieving their convictions of losses and mismanagement as set forth in the November report. They declare that the evidence convinced them that the system of purchasing supplies was discreditable and damaging. They present testimony which seems to be strong and entitled to great weight. They affirm that sufficient reliability and soundness are not offered in set aside the evidence above named. They declare their deliberate judgment that losses very serious have occurred, and that mismanagement has existed. The majority report does not impeach the testimony offered by the minority. It says it will not supplement it by assuming that the "letters and allegations are by no means full, and are, therefore, inconclusive;" but what of them as far as they do testify! It says they were "traversed," but does not say they were disproved. The minority report gives us an outline of the testimony upon which it rests. The majority report says it simply accepts its conclusions, and that solely upon facts in its judgment. The matter is too grave for that, especially when its judgment differs so widely in November and February. In the name of the Church, in the name of our honored Book Concern, we ask for facts as the are presented by the dead, not in cold, entire frankness, and believe concealment a mistake of the gravest character. We know full well that in conducting the business of so large an establishment, with so many departments and employes, it is not possible to prevent all irregularities; but an irreparable injury will be done the Church, if any considerable part of it, shall believe that "great mismanagement" exists and is concealed. Indeed, the credit of our great publishing house is gone hopelessly in the hour that the Church believes that one of her own chosen officers encounters obstruction in official investigations he attempts to make. In conclusion, we offer the following resolutions:

Resolved, That, in our judgment, the doubt and dissatisfaction of the Church cannot be removed until the Church is put in possession of the facts as shown in the report.

Resolved, That in view of conflicting statements which have been given to the Church and the public from the Book Committee in the recent heretofore unknown, and, as we believe, unprecedented action of a committee, by commission or other wise, in advance of the General Conference, if possible, if not before, then under its direction, and that such investigation shall be made by a committee of the Church, by the "consolidated exhibit" contained in the "exhibit of the Methodist Book Concern," which follows the "annual report of the Book Committee."

Resolved, That the thanks of the Church are due the minority of the Book Committee for respecting the call of the Church for facts, and also for asserting the right of the minority to report to the Conferences, and thus giving an additional guarantee to the Church for the integrity, economy, and success of our great publishing interest.

A JOURNEY TO SING SING.

How Deputy Sheriff Bennett Performed the Value of Whiskey as a Sensation.

It is well known that there is extreme difficulty in getting out depositions in criminal cases in New-York, and it appears from a story told by the Twentieth Precinct Police that the difficulty is the way of the enforcement that has been overcome even by convicted and sentenced. The above heading of the remarkable Deputy Sheriff, possessed by the Sheriff of New-York, provides many a jolly for the condemned between the bitter cup of sentence and the forbidding tip of the prison door, but none of them ever took more pains to have an unjoyful drinks than did one Patrick McGuire, on Thursday. This prisoner having to change four prisoners who had been sentenced to various terms in the State Prison started with them for Sing Sing on that day leaving the Tombs with the purpose of taking the P. M. train on the Hudson River Road. Being of a jolly disposition, however, he made a detour in the Bowery course of Bleecker-street and Thirteenth-street, where he frequently performed his performance to shown their services to the Sheriff, and to lighten his own cares joined them in the operation. News of this reached Officer McCullough, who was in charge, and Officer McCullough, of the Twentieth Precinct, that officer started to the saloon with the intention of preventing the escape of the prisoners. He met the party totter-ing out of the saloon, and having failed a woman in an attempt to pass something to one of the prisoners, he quickly hurried into the depot. He then hurried to the Sheriff and made his report of the affair to Sergt. McCULLOUGH, who was in charge. That official at once sent Roundsmen ROSEVELT and Officers MURPHY and McCULLOUGH to the depot to see the drunken Sheriff safely aboard the train on the train. On arriving at the depot, the officers found the party seated in one of the cars, but as the roundsmen considered the Sheriff in his then condition, as an unsafe custodian of the prisoners, he directed Officer MURPHY to remain on the train, but not to interfere during the trip unless the convicts should attempt to escape. Very soon after the train had left the depot Officer McMAHON produced a bottle of whisky, and with that exhilarating beverage moistened the sensibilities of his journey. He was not selfish, however, but divided freely with his convict companions, and the result was that when the train reached Sing Sing the entire party was stupidly drunk. Officer MURPHY, having secured them with difficulty and having succeeded in getting them off the train, at Sing Sing, landed them safely in the prison. McMahon and McCrack that he could not have been accomplices for his prisoners, but thinking that he could not be in a fit state, they were taken into the cells and the Sheriff left fall out upon a bench. He was too far gone to get back to the City by the return train, and Officer MURPHY, having taken possession of his revolver, keys and handcuffs, came down to Jerome-avenue and Twenty-third-street, and Capt. RYNDERS in the Twentieth Precinct Station-house for the articles taken from the Deputy, and they were delivered to him. The most singular part of this very startling story is that no mention was made of these facts either by telegraph or on the morning returns from the Tombs. Yesterday, however, it transpired that Capt. CAYNET will be required to explain his gross violation of the rules of the Department.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

Meeting of the Woman Suffrage Association—A Free Interchange of Views.

The Woman Suffrage Association held its weekly meeting yesterday afternoon, at the residence of Dr. HALLOCK, in East Fifteenth-street.

In the absence of Mrs WILBOUR, Mrs. BLAKE was installed in the chair, and opened proceedings by comment upon the circumstance of women having been recently called to serve as jurors. Eleven women were forthcoming when wanted for the purpose, none of them refusing on account of sick husbands, sick children, any domestic obstacle whatsoever. The Judge's charge to the female jury was warmly applauded.

The coming convention of women in the approaching May was the topic next taken up, and matters were discussed with the view of securing a proper hall for the occasion.

Mrs. WILBOUR now entered and took the chair, and several ladies followed who had been invited on the previous evening to form the Working Women's Association at Cooper Institute.

Honorable mention was made of Susan B. Anthony, in her connection with the inaugural move in the woman interest.

A lady in the assembly desired some hints from the women in council as to a plan for interesting Southern women, (she was on the eve of a Southern tour) in the great question—the Rights of Woman.

It was declared by one voice, in response, that the question of suffrage interested Southern women above all others, if possible. Many women of the section would be eligible to the franchise where their fathers, husbands, brothers would not, for, though few of them would deny having given aid and comfort to the enemy in the late rebellion, they certainly never bore arms against the Union. There was the old idea prejudice to contend, but it would probably be overcome. Southern women were well informed in politics, and had more business education than their Northern sisters.

A lady said she did not think the right to vote, a sovereign palladium for woman's wrongs; she advocated extension of the franchise right to females, after they were educated to its use, not before. This opinion was from the Bar.

An expression to the effect that women were just as well educated to the use of the ballot as men were, and that a contrary assumption would be found to be entirely fallacious.

The call to justice in this respect was imperative as witnessed the printed reports of the working women's meeting the previous evening, where three hundred women were virtually ignored, and treated like three thousand male citizens, this because they represented no political power.

A little more dilation on each points, and the members adjourned.

On February 22d, instant, the Association meets at 2½ P. M., at the same place.

The City Sunday-school and Missionary Society held its monthly meeting, yesterday afternoon, at its rooms, No. 805 Broadway, Vice-President C. H. APPLEGATE in the chair, James H. PARSON acting as Secretary. A large number of delegates were present, including several clergymen.

The Missionaries reported as follows, concerning their work for the month of February: Rev. GEORGE HOLLIS, of the East Side—Pastoral visits to families, 1,751; visits to sick, 141; visits to Sunday-schools, 37; pages of tracts and Good News circulated, 6,027; religious services held, 18; children promised to Sunday-schools, 85; persons promised to attend church, 96; conversions, 28; received on probation, 30; received into full membership, 9; temperance meetings, 32; baptisms, 4; funerals attended, 4; average attendance in schools, 832.

Rev. D. H. MARKS, of the west side, reported: Religious meetings, 134; visitors to Sunday-schools, 9 (which fully all pastors visited 1,200 times); sick, 87; pages of tracts and Good News distributed, 2,416; persons promised to attend church, 42; children promised to Sunday-schools, 60; joined on probation, 12; joined by letter, 2; received in full membership, 2; baptisms, 4; funerals attended, 5; temperance meetings, 4.

Rev. Wm. H. DE PUY, Chairman of the Public Meeting Committee, reported that preparations had been almost completed for the anniversary celebration of the Society, which will occur on Monday evening, 28th inst., at St. Paul's Church, corner Fourth-avenue and Twenty-third-street. Revs. Dr. FOWLER and J. M. FAIRWEIGH, Esq., both of Chicago, are engaged for addresses, and Bishop AMES will preside.

LAW REPORTS.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

FOREIGN ADMINISTRATORS—THE CONSTRUCTION OF CONTRACTS.

Josiah A. Norton vs. A. P. R. Bradley.—Error to the Circuit Court of the District of Wisconsin.

Norton purchased of one Lee certain real estate in Wisconsin, and to secure the purchase money gave a mortgage for some of the premises. At the time of the purchase one Orton was in possession, holding adversely to Lee; and owing to this fact he engaged of Lee before the deed was delivered, and at a contract was made that if Orton would not resist the sale of the premises, Lee would allow him a certain time to pay the money to fall due on the bond. Lee so informed the purchaser, before delivery of the deed, and Orton did not resist the sale. Subsequently, Lee assigned the mortgage to Bradley, the defendant in error, who appointed a receiver of the estate in question by the New-York Courts, and notwithstanding the State Courts of Wisconsin afterward decided that Lee was in fact in Orton. Bradley commenced this action on the bond given by Norton to Lee, and the Court below rendered pro forma judgment in his favor.

The plaintiff in error contends that Bradley, a foreign administrator, cannot maintain this suit, not having gained permission by statute of Wisconsin to "sue or be sued therein in his official capacity," or the jurisdiction conferring him with any such permission. On the merits, it is insisted that Lee's indemnity against the land [illegible]

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS—MARCH 11.

Before Judge Barnard.

A DIVORCE SUIT—MOTION TO GIVE EVIDENCE.

Mary A. Spure, plaintiff, Mary A. Walton, vs. Charles A. Walton.—Judge Barnard, which in one shape or another has been frequently before the Court, came up again before Judge BARNARD today, on a motion made to have a referee appointed. Briefly, the facts are that some time ago the defendant in this suit obtained a decree of divorce against his wife with the ground of adultery. The case was sent to a referee, and about the only evidence which was produced before him was the fact that a child was born to the plaintiff, which she claimed to enter a house of assignation. A decree of divorce having been granted, and judgment duly entered thereon, the defendant herein filed himself as trustee for the benefit of the children of the marriage with the plaintiff in this action. Afterward the mother of these children died, and now Mrs. Spure, otherwise Mrs. Mary A. Walton, has commenced a suit to recover the money left by her husband in her name, on the ground that the money was paid from the trust fund, and that the trust was at an end on the death of the children.

After argument the Court took the matter and postponed the case to Mr. Judge Barnard to take a decree.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT—BROOKLYN.

Before Judge Gilbert.

ACTION TO RECOVER A DEBT—VERDICT FOR THE PLAINTIFF.

Alexander Shadwell & Co. vs. Franklin Shaefer.—This suit was commenced to recover the balance due of $1,641 for leather sold and delivered to defendant by the plaintiff. Shaefer, the defendant, had been carrying on business in Fourteenth-street, New-York, as a manufacturer of boots and shoes, and is alleged to have become indebted to various parties. It was alleged that he represented to plaintiff that his (plaintiff's) father was about to give and had actually given him $40,000 as an advance gift for the purpose of carrying on his business, and that on the strength of this representation and that he managed to obtain credit. Shortly after word he was burnt out, but he swore word near his property, and with a total assignment in favor of plaintiff to secure the payment of $20 on account, and attached the balance of his stock of goods, together with the business on his place, to secure the payment of the balance of plaintiff's demand, in consideration of his agreement to put in a plea of guardian of [illegible], and that he was under twenty-one years of age. He appeared by his father and guardian, and claimed, therefore, that he was not liable for the debts he had contracted. Plaintiffs then put in a complaint stating that when defendant bought the goods he stated that he was of full age, and that, if he was not liable on the contract, he was liable for the goods. The Court held that plaintiffs were entitled to such relief as the complaint set forth.

The jury remained out until 5 o'clock last evening, and this morning they came in with a sealed verdict, awarding the plaintiffs $1,700 damages.

FRIDAY, March 11—P. M.

The upward reaction in Gold which set in yesterday and carried the price up to 112¾@112¾ ₱ cent., was renewed this morning and by 1 o'clock P. M. the extreme advance was to 113¾@114 ₱ cent. From this point there was a counter action down to 112¾ ₱ cent. At 3 o'clock P. M. the quotation had again advanced to 113¾ ₱ cent. The very latest quotation of the afternoon will appear in the table below. The market throughout the day was unquestionably strong. The [illegible]

The Chicago Price Current, of March 9, says:

Pork packing virtually closed here two weeks ago, but at the time our report was made we had obtained from the packers all but two hundred barrels, the report of which has been received directly, the report of which has been received since our last report. We have obtained the exact number of barrels packed, and the results are as authentic shape that it may be regarded as accurate for comparison as of the season has been made by themselves. The reports thus obtained footed up 76,300 hogs, using the total packing of this place the past season, against 82,000 the previous season.

The average weight of the hogs this season is 256¼ lbs., and the average yield of lard 27¼ lbs., to the latter may be added fully 21 lbs. for head and gut. These figures compare with those of the previous seasons as follows:

BANKING AND FINANCIAL.

OF THE FIRST MORTGAGE SEVEN PER CENT BONDS OF THE NEW-HAVEN, MIDDLETOWN AND WILLIMANTIC RAILROAD COMPANY OF CONNECTICUT ARE BEING MARKETED WITH GREAT SUCCESS. The first issue of $500,000 has already been placed, and sales are being filled from the second issue.

About $[illegible] has been expended on the road, and the work is being carried forward with the utmost vigor.

Less than $[illegible] will be required to complete the line between New-Haven and Middletown, and trains will be running over that section during May.

The Bonds are issued only as the work progresses, and for but one-half of the actual cash expenditure, thus constituting a loan on Road and Mortgage, in connection, secured by property worth double the amount of Bonds, the Company paying State and Local Taxes and the United States Income Tax.

The CONNECTICUT AID-LINE BONDS have from the first ranked with the best securities in the market, and have justly been regarded with the utmost confidence by investors. The vast importance of the enterprise is shown at a glance, while the value of a new and saving twenty-seven miles over the oldest and most popular route between the two chief commercial and financial cities of America can scarcely be overestimated.

The continual decline in Government bonds has increased the desire to convert the premium which remains into interest bearing capital, and we know of no form of investment which combines all the excellencies contained by this Loan, or offers the attractions, to those accustomed to holding Government, which are found in the Air-line Bonds.

The Bonds are issued in denominations of $[illegible] and $1,000, and are in the form of Coupon Bonds; but can, at the option of the holder, be Registered, either with or without, Coupons attached.

They are still offered at Par and Interest.

FOUR PER CENT. INTEREST ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.

The business of this house is the same as an Incorporated Bank.

Persons keeping accounts may deposit and draw as they please, the same as with the City Banks, and will be allowed interest on their daily balances at 4 per cent.

Collections made on any part of the United States or Canada.

Orders for the purchase or sale of the various issues of Government and other Stocks, Bonds, and Gold, promptly executed for the usual commission.

OF THE SOUTHERN CENTRAL RAILROAD is now completed the entire distance from Owego to Ithaca. A regular and reliable route is opened and Manifest Freight is offered at reduced rates. The local business of the Southern Central is in very good hands in freight and passenger traffic. The rich Agricultural country through which it runs will afford a fair business, and the Ithaca Iron Works, great manufacturing establishments at Auburn, Waterloo, etc., are to be built on the State, and the enterprising towns along the line, will swelling the business of the road.

VERMILYE & CO., the Financial Agents of the Road, offer the remaining unsold portion of the Bonds with the greatest confidence, believing them to be the most desirable security that has ever been placed on this market.

The Bonds are issued for $500 and $1,000, and are in the form of Coupon Bonds; but can, at the option of the holder, be Registered, either with or without Coupons attached.

BANKING AND FINANCIAL.

OF NO SAFER OR BETTER INVESTMENT THAN THE FIRST MORTGAGE 7 PER CENT GOLD BONDS OF THE CENTRAL RAILROAD OF IOWA at 85, Brooklyn [illegible]

This railroad [illegible] and south [illegible] of the magnificent State of Iowa, and is the only link wanting to connect the railway system of the East and West. Point up the connections [illegible] 140 miles shorter than any existing route. Forty-six miles are already completed and nearly 100 miles more are graded.

The amount of Bonds to be issued is but $[illegible] per mile, or less than four millions in all,

OF WHICH OVER ONE MILLION HAVE ALREADY BEEN SOLD.

We believe there will be no more favorable time to sell Government, and buy ready first-class railroad securities—such as these—than the present.

After a full examination, we have accepted an Agency for the sale of the above First Mortgage Bonds, and desire to recommend them to our customers as a thoroughly safe as well as profitable investment. JAY COOKE & CO.,

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The schema on Papal infallibility, distributed to the members of the Council on Monday, is given in substance in our telegraphic news columns. The Pontifical Court opposes emphatically the French demand for representation in the Council, but assurances are given that the French representative will be received with the consideration due that Power.... The prison of Santé Pelagie, Paris, where the so-called conspirators were confined, has been examined and seventy-four of the prisoners removed, because of small pox....A spurious cargo of tea, which was afterward reexported, had arrived in England....An official statement was made in the House of Commons that the water boundaries between the United States and British territory had been referred to arbitrators.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, the Georgia bill was made the order of business, as soon as the Funding bill was disposed of. Among the bills introduced was one by Mr. DRAKE for securing more efficient seamen for the navy, by providing for the appointment of a naval apprentice from each Congressional District; and another by Mr. FARRAR, to regulate telegraphic correspondence with foreign countries. The bill providing for the appointment of a Joint Committee to consider all matters relating to Indian tribes, was discussed during the morning hour. A motion to postpone the subject indefinitely was defeated on a tie by the casting vote of the Vice-President. The Funding bill debate was then resumed. Various amendments were offered, one by Mr. SHERMAN to the second section, extending the time in which the four and a half bonds should be paid from thirty to forty years, was agreed to, and another by Mr. HOWE to section ten, authorizing banks to be organized on a capital of $50,000 instead of $100,000. All other amendments were rejected. A motion fixing the commissions at one-half of one per cent. was carried. The bill was then passed by a vote of 33 to 10, and at 6¼ P. M. the Senate adjourned until Monday.

In the House various reports were received from the Committee on Patents for and against their extension. The House, in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to the consideration of the Tariff bill, Mr. MCCARTHY making a long speech in its support. His views on the salt duty gave rise to some debate. At the conclusion of his remarks the bill was laid aside, and the General Deficiency bill taken up. It appropriates an aggregate amount of $2,477,711 for deficiencies in the civil service for the present fiscal year. The largest items are as follows: For Post-offices at New-York, $450,000; Boston, $200,000; Mint at San Francisco, $169,000, and Reconstruction expenses, $695,000. In the debate which followed Mr. BECK made a long argument, in which he arraigned the Administration for extravagance, and as he claimed, for misappropriating the public expenditures. Mr. COX referred to the recent speech of Mr. DAWES in New-Hampshire as differing in its tenor from the one made in the House on the side of economy. Mr. DAWES replied to both arguments, defending the Administration from the charges made and reconciling the so-called points of difference in his two speeches. Some further discussion followed, but without any action on the bill the Committee rose, and at 5 P. M. the House adjourned. The pension bill is for general debate only.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

In the Senate, yesterday, the New-York and Brooklyn Transatlantic Dispatch bill, the New-York Pawnbrokers' bill and the Brooklyn Water and Sewerage Commission Amendment bill were reported. Concurrent resolutions were reported proposing an amendment to the Constitution to provide a Board of Managers of Prisons. A bill to incorporate the New-York Arcade Railroad Company was also reported; and the Brooklyn Police bill was reported complete, and ordered to a third reading. A bill was introduced to prohibit the collection of rents on meters by gas companies. The bill to authorize the extension of the Avenue C Railroad in New-York was passed, reconsidered and laid on the table. The bill incorporating the American Literary Bureau was passed, together with a number of local bills, when the Senate adjourned to Monday evening next.

In the Assembly, the bill authorizing the leasing of ground by the New-York Commissioners of the Sinking Fund for a Foundling Asylum was passed; also, the bills to incorporate the New-York Watchmen's Mutual Protective Union, and the bill to appoint an interpreter in Brooklyn Police Justices' Courts. The bill to regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors was passed by a vote of 67 to 54, under the operation of the previous question. A bill to incorporate the New-York Arcade Railroad Company was introduced. The House took a recess till 7½ P. M. The evening session was devoted to the consideration of canal claims by special order, and to some business on the general orders. The House adjourned till Monday evening.

GENERAL.

A Havana dispatch says the cholera has disappeared from Santa Spiritus. Some of the Havana journals assail the Captain-General for his asserted connection with the murder of GREMWALDYN. The attacks are said to be unwarranted, as Señor DE RODAS used every effort to punish the murderer and succeeded. The obnoxious Masons are still in jail in Havana.

Petitions are in circulation in Nova Scotia asking the Dominion Parliament to impose a duty on American coal. The people are warned by the anti-confederation journals that such a duty would be regarded as justification for a duty on flour and salt to the injury of Nova Scotia interests.

Returns from 238 towns in New-Hampshire give STRAKER over all others 1,210 majority. The Senate stands six Republicans and one Democrat, with five districts undecided. In the House the Republican majority will be about fifty.

A fire occurred yesterday among the oil tanks and cars at Oil City, Penn., which at one time threatened the destruction of the town. It began at 10¼ A. M., and at 1 P. M. was entirely extinguished. A tank containing 10,000 barrels of oil was within thirty feet of the fire, and became so heated that the gas issuing from it ignited.

In the United States Supreme Court yesterday the counsel for YERGER stated that the object of the petition to the Court having been accomplished by the transfer of the prisoner to the civil authorities, he would move that the petition be dismissed.

A Raid on the Army.

We are advocates of stringent economy and retrenchment in the public service wherever they can be applied with justice and a wise regard for ultimate saving to the tax payers; but there is always danger that the custodians of public expenditure may allow their zeal to outstrip their discretion, or that they may be carried away by a desire to make a display of saving, regardless of losses that ultimately may ensue. We think that an illustration of this is to be found in the repeated raids which have been made upon the army by Congress since the war closed. There is no doubt that the advent of peace imposed upon that body a vast and disagreeable labor of military reduction, but it was one which demanded the utmost circumspection to prevent the grossest injustice to individuals, as well as great resulting detriment to the public service.

The army has been subjected to repeated depletions, and up to this time, perhaps, there has been little reason or disposition for general complaint. But the new bill now before Congress, and which was debated in the House on Thursday, is naturally creating a stir of apprehension. It proposes to abolish the grade of General and Lieutenant-General, to reduce the number of Major-Generals from five to three, and of Brigadiers from ten to six. The designations are to be made by the President without regard to seniority and the others are to be mustered out. The Chiefs of Staff are hereafter to rank as Colonels instead of Brigadiers, and present incumbents are to be retained with the reduced rank and pay. The President is authorized to place upon the retired list, and order to be mustered out, in his discretion, such officers as he may designate, not exceeding 250 in number, with one year's pay and allowances. Brevet rank is to be abolished, and no officer allowed to hold any civil office. The control of Indian affairs is transferred to the War Office in pursuance of the President's recommendation, and the pay table is reduced and fixed definitely at a sum certain in lieu of all commutations.

There are some features of the new bill which are salutary and proper, and some which are harsh and oppressive. The sections which provide for mustering out cannot fail to work cruelly upon many worthy officers to whom the nation stands deeply indebted for substantial services during the war. We hold that the country is under a deep and abiding obligation to those gallant men who have dedicated their lives to its service and have disqualified themselves for the successful prosecution of civil pursuits. We do not believe that the people desire to ignore their claims, or to be ungrateful or niggardly. We go even a step farther, and seriously question if the public service will be at all the gainer by such a policy.

Those who are best acquainted with the service are aware that in every duty to which the regular army officer is assigned he is incorruptible and saving; and that by comparison, with an equal number of civilians, organized to perform the same service, and through political influence, the expense would be largely in favor of the Government. In our opinion every worthy officer of the army could be profitably employed. With our immense territory, and the diversified requirements of the public service, there is no difficulty in finding necessary detached service, for which our superannuated officers are peculiarly fitted, to keep them all profitably employed. By doing so we could spare the Government the humiliation and shame which will otherwise be brought upon it.

The abolition of brevet rank is a step which is open to serious debate. There is much to be said on both sides, and we are disposed to take the affirmative. Previous to the war brevets were granted sparingly and solely for merit. They were then a badge of honor, and were cherished and recognized as such. Subsequently, however, they were conferred almost indiscriminately through political influence, and the consequence has been that they have become cheapened below desirability. A great many, of course, were properly conferred, but in the plentiful distribution of them they ceased to be distinctive or specially honorable. We believe that the service will be benefited by abolishing them altogether.

With regard to the proposed reduction of pay we feel warranted in speaking only in general terms. We believe we echo the general sentiment in advocating liberal compensation to the army. We require them to be gentlemen, and to maintain their positions as such, and we know that the uncertain exigencies of the service preclude the more moderate expense of a fixed domicile. Whether the proposed new pay table is adjusted upon this basis, and is ample in view of the new adjustments of values, we will not pretend to say. That is a matter wherein the army must look out for itself, through the influence which it is always able to bring to bear upon Congress.

Our only apprehension is that Congress may go too far under the whip and spur of retrenchment, and overlooking greater and more proper fields of reform, do injustice to a class of men to whom the nation stands largely indebted, and bound by a thousand ties of gratitude and honorable obligation.

The Wool Interest and the Tariff.

The "suffering woolen manufacturer" of Rhode Island has again appeared in the Tribune for consolation or advice. Though a protectionist, he does not altogether approve of a tariff which has ruined both the wool-grower and the wool manufacturer. The facts which he has been laboriously presenting to the Tribune, and which only excite its derision, are simply these:

The wools which the United States produce are mainly the "merino clothing" wools, which make cheap woolen goods, or furnish the warps for the finer goods. These wools can be grown here cheaper than anywhere in the world, and need no protection. The wools which are imported are the finer wools which are not produced here, or only to a very limited extent. Our manufacturers, by combining the native coarse wools with the foreign fine varieties, can manufacture doeskins, cassimeres and broadcloths, which might successfully compete with German and French importations, and thus establish one of the home branches of industry for which the Tribune is so anxious. By producing thus a variety of goods, both the common and the fine, the manufacturer is enabled to open a wider market, to employ more hands and more machinery, and to use more of the home grown coarse wools than if he were confined to them alone. For his customers must have a certain proportion of fine goods, and if he can produce them, he can mix in some two-fifths of coarse wools, and thus afford a market for so much more of the home product. If, by tax or otherwise he is kept to coarse wools, all the mixture required in fine goods will come in foreign goods, and be supplied by foreign sheep growers. Moreover, having but one kind of goods which he can produce—namely, the common—he must soon overstock the market, and he has less opportunity for inventions or new styles, so that his product falls below its fair value, and as a natural result, the home wool itself falls also.

Now it might have been supposed that under this state of things any Legislature in possession of its senses would have "protected" the manufacturers by letting in the fine wools free, which were not much produced here, and aided the sheep grower by thus enlarging and giving variety to the home manufacture of woolen goods. Instead of this, at the close of the war, the Wool-growers' Association and the manufacturers, under the cry of the Tribune and other organs for high tariffs, entered into a compact, which was finally presented to Congress and adopted by that wise body some two years and a half since. Under this agreement the wools which were little produced here were taxed at rates varying from ten to twelve cents per pound, and ten to eleven per cent. ad valorem. This was of course a sop to the agricultural interest. It proved, however, a most poisonous gift for them. Next, to compensate the manufacturers for this enhancement of the price of the raw material, the duty on cloth was made fifty cents per pound; to this twenty-five per cent. ad valorem was added. At this time the manufacturers were paying an internal revenue tax of six per cent., and to relieve them of this a further tax of ten per cent. was added to foreign goods. The revenue tax was subsequently repealed, but the additional ten per cent. tax was retained, with a cheerful forgetfulness of the burdens thus put on the people. The aggregate duties on woolen goods became now fifty cents per pound and thirty-five per cent. ad valorem.

Both sides thus plundered the people and were "protected," after a style of protection of which there are few instances since CHAPPIE V. of Spain. But the protection was found, now as very generally, not to be almost stifling. The manufacturer could take but one kind of goods, the wool-grower (in general) but one kind of wool. The result is known everywhere, and both wool and coarse woolen goods fell to a ruinously low price. The fine wools, driven out from home, were made up in Canada, or entered into the manufactures of Europe and still further cheapened their fine goods, so that, despite the fifty cents per pound duty, they were imported here cheaper than ever. The woolen manufacture broke down and wool growing became a losing business. Mill after mill either failed or did a business which barely sustained it. The export of woolen goods fell off sixty per cent. in one year, and only reached the paltry sum in value of $169,800, while the imports of foreign woolen goods increased, and attained the value of $34,630,943. Smuggling of woolen goods has increased enormously, and some of our factories have been removed to Canada. Nor did the wool-grower prosper any better under this paternal protection. Wool has reached the lowest price almost ever known, and it is estimated by the Commissioner of Agriculture that there has been a decrease in the number of sheep of four millions in a single year, 1862.

Something of these cheerful effects of a high tariff has been forced on the Tribune's attention by its own friends among the "suffering manufacturers." They are all familiar to the intelligent portion of the public. That journal has always been famous for its unscrupulous method of discussion. But in this late tariff controversy, as it finds itself on unpopular ground, it shows more than its usual unscrupulousness. First, in two different replies to its correspondent, the Rhode Island manufacturer, it states that the number of sheep, and the aggregate product of wool, have increased since the tariff. But the editor has only to turn to his reports from the Department of Agriculture for March and April, 1869, to see in black and white the fearful condition of the sheep growing interest. One hundred and seventy counties of twenty-one different States are there reported from, and the decrease of sheep seems to range from twenty to fifty per cent. in every State, except Missouri. Every farmer knows that it has scarcely paid for the last two years to raise sheep for market or to grow wool.

The truth is that very few Governments are wise enough to know how to "protect" well. Their encouragement of one branch often destroys another equally important, or blights the growth of the one they sought to cherish. The indirect effects of a high tariff are often worse than the direct; and of this, the woolen interest is a marked illustration.

What Can Republicans Do in New-York?

The Republican papers in the West are talking of "cutting loose" from New-York. Their line of argument is that the City brings the party into disrepute, and that although Democrats are responsible for the chief scandals connected with it, yet the Republicans cannot acquit themselves of responsibility for supineness in the face of abuses which ought never to have been tolerated for a single year. Some of the journals speculate on the probability of great ports being opened in New-Jersey, and in time causing New-York to decline from its present state of prosperity. We may have our own opinions about the feasibility of this project, and it is not necessary to discuss them at this moment. But that the subject should be treated at all and anywhere in this spirit is one proof among many of the growth of the opinion which we have been expressing for years past—namely, that the general system of fraud which goes under the name of "government" in this City would in time come to be regarded as a national scandal.

The recommendation of the Western papers with regard to the separation of the rest of the party from New-York means very little. They do not tell us how they would accomplish the measure in question, nor have they any very clear idea what would be the effect of it if they succeeded. Wise leaders never propose to disperse their forces, but rather to bring them into complete harmony, and set different divisions moving in the same direction. New-York is not likely to lose its commercial position, and the removal of its municipal and political scandals is only a question of time. The day will come when people will turn to old files of this journal for denunciations of a corrupt Government and dishonest Judges with the same feeling that we now read of Lord BACON taking money of suitors in the cases tried before him, or of Sir ROBERT WALPOLE buying up majorities. Such stories will merely be curious from the historic point of view. A lady came to this City on a visit some time ago and wrote of it thus: "The bricks in some of the houses are of divers colors, and laid in checkers; being glazed they look very agreeable. The staircases are laid with white tiles." The remarks which we now make on the reign of fraud in this City will no more apply to its condition some years hence than this lady's description of our houses in 1704 applies to the dwellings in which we live now. Time is on our side in the contest we have waged, and all that we have fought for will one day be secured.

But in order to accelerate this brighter epoch we would not cut away New-York from the Republican Party, but rather seek to strengthen our hold here. There is nothing so fatal to the success of parties as the conviction that it is useless to struggle against their opponents. No man and no organization of men, having a good object in view, ought to admit that they are hopelessly defeated. We must convince Republicans here that it is their duty to be more aggressive, and to study to form combinations, especially with the German element in the City. The Democrats are a "rabble"—that is, they are disorganized and incapable of dealing with the crisis which has arisen in their affairs. The respectable portion of the party are undone by their allies. They cannot overcome mountains, and it would be unreasonable to expect too much willingly give some of them the credit of doing most earnestly an honest duty by the inhabitants of this good City. But they are overwhelmed by numbers. The Republicans must go on regardless of them. They must fight their own battle. With the exercise of patience, courage and earnestness we shall succeed in the end; but the idea of formally relinquishing the field to our antagonists is too pusillanimous to be seriously entertained by the party leaders.

The Massacre—Gen. Sheridan's Report.

At last we have from Fort Shaw Col. BAKER's official report of his recent "scout against the hostile Piegan and Blood Indians." This is the document on which Gen. SHERIDAN has relied to confute the reports of Gen. SULLY and Mr. VINCENT COLYER, and until the arrival of which we have been asked to suspend adverse opinion.

We regret to say that Col. BAKER's report, so far from correcting the previous stories of ruthless slaughter, confirms them; so far from relieving the darkness of the picture previously drawn, it clouds it afresh by official verification. It is true, as appears from this report, that an overpowering force did surround the camp of Bear Chief and Big Horn, and slaughtered 173 of its inmates. As this is the precise number given in the Sully report, and as all other important details tally exactly, we are authorized to assume the truth of the other horrible particulars, previously reported, but about which Col. BAKER keeps ominously silent,—namely, that of the 173 victims, but 33 were fighting men, while 90 were women, and 50 were children less than twelve years old. In confirmation of this view, we have from Col. BAKER the list of "our casualties," which are "one man killed, and one with a broken leg from a fall from his horse"—the very language employed in the first account, which was universally interpreted as showing that the Indians were slaughtered like sheep in the shambles, and that the affair was not a battle but a butchery.

The excusatory indorsement which Gen. HANCOCK appends to this report in forwarding it, seems to us to add fresh condemnation to the affair. "It was supposed," he says, "the warriors belonging to those camps were all present, and if they were not, as has since been alleged, it is presumed the fact was not known to Col. BAKER until the attack ended." We have here an inferential admission that the atrocity of the slaughter needs palliation, since it cannot be denied. The sole redeeming point in Col. BAKER's report is its statement that "over one hundred women and children were captured," showing that the slaughtering of these resistless non-combatants was at least suspended after 140 had been dispatched, and in season to save one hundred equally defenceless.

If Col. BAKER's report is the best showing that can be made for his scout, we decidedly do not subscribe to the declaration that "too much credit cannot be given to the officers and men of the command for their conduct during the whole expedition." That they exhibited great fortitude in the march, and that they attacked with courage what they supposed a powerful foe, is clear, and indeed the bravery and endurance of the troops was never questioned; but that such slaughter of women and children was necessary to discover that all the men were dead or had fled, is of course preposterous to suppose. The affair demands investigation.

Value of a Funny Man in Politics.

Perhaps most of our readers noticed a line in our foreign telegraphic news yesterday to the effect that "Mr. OSBORNE, the newly elected member for Waterford, on taking his seat in the House of Commons, was loudly cheered." They may have wondered what particular cause or principle Mr. OSBORNE represents that he should enjoy the distinction of such a reception.

He represents nothing more momentous than the principle that it is a good thing for men to laugh now and then in this precarious world. Nowadays every body is so deplorably serious that a joke seems to scare people as if a man in dining with them had insisted upon standing on his head in the soup tureen, or balancing the fish knife upon his nose. We are all too "respectable" to laugh much. The consequence is that pompous humbugs flourish all the world over, while poor Jack Pudding goes in rags. The idea prevails that a sort of sacred obligation rests upon all of us to discuss every subject that arises with long faces and sad words. The seventeenth century produced this feeling as a reaction from the greater buoyancy of the fifteenth. The spirits of the human race revived a little in the eighteenth century, but they soon sunk again, and now, in the latter part of the nineteenth century, we are going back to solemn dullness and intense propriety. If a man wants to get on, never let him jest. People will set him down as "too frivolous" for the place—Bide et sayde, said the old satirist—but who heeds such advice now? Who has the courage even to offer it, except in the disguise of a brief and hackneyed Latin quotation?

The deities of dullness have taken complete possession of the British Parliament, and thus far during the session only about half a dozen forlorn jokes have been hazarded within the walls of the House of Commons. Mr. DISRAELI was the audacious jester, but he is ill, and now no one has the courage to utter a witticism in the teeth of Mr. GLADSTONE—a great man, but without the slightest appreciation of humor in his composition. How much he has lost through that defect! Lord PALMERSTON was not a great man, and yet he could always manage the House as easy as a glove. And why? Because he knew the value of a joke. His jaunty bearing and his dry sayings never failed to act as oil upon the troubled waters. But Mr. GLADSTONE's funereal countenance depresses every body who chances to look upon it. He sends people away from him to shiver in the bleak world without a smile. No wonder, then, that the [illegible] have been in this Chamber [illegible] and angry labels on them stating [illegible] of the day. Everybody is warm and [illegible] edged. The Speaker finds it hard work to preserve order. Mr. DISRAELI has made his motion speech, and is sitting down listening to a violent onset with the impossibility of the ministry. All the forces of all the worst politicians that ever lived are [illegible] to him, and not a muscle of his face moves. Presently he looks at the clock—it is half past seven, and off he goes to dinner, leaving his fiery antagonist to spatter out of his leisure. By and by the light warms better and better. There is a great deal of "bad blood" in the place. Hard words fly round in all directions, and a general din disturbs the ear. Suddenly there is a dead silence, and then a sharp rattle of "Hear, hear," which forms the chorus of the House of Commons. A gentleman in an evening dress with a very Jewish cast of countenance has risen from one of the benches. Every head is turned toward him. He begins by making some pungent comment on a previous speech, and then advances into a burst of broad fun—"chaffing" Ministers and other potentates, ridiculing anything nonsensical which has been uttered in the course of the debate, introducing all sorts of comic comparisons and metaphors, and dragging the House with him by the sheer force of his good humor until it fairly laughs outright—and then he goes on, keeping it laughing for ten minutes. There is not very much in what he says. But it is all appropriate to the moment—there are no old stories, no studied pleasantries. The speech is every word of it based upon the proceedings of the evening.

This is Mr. BERNAL OSBORNE—the gentleman received on Thursday night in the House of Commons with cheers from both sides. In that arid wilderness even one drop of moisture will be acceptable. Mr. OSBORNE's function in life is to make people laugh, and although some people decry that function, yet it is found that the House of Commons can do better with than without it. A little humor helps on the day's work. In Congress a very little goes a great way this session—when Gen. BUTLER recently repeated the words of a song famous in "nigger" minstrelsy the House was convulsed with laughter. People outside marveled at the small matter which moved members to mirth. But after a long round of dreary talk the smallest joke is acceptable. Thus it has happened that Mr. OSBORNE was welcomed back to the House of Commons with a cordiality which not even Mr. GLADSTONE, the great party leader, has hitherto evoked this year. Henceforth members of that House will have the evening's occupation relieved once more with cakes and ale.

Gold is once more on the upward move—a rebuke to the folly which has been chattering about an immediate return to specie payments. Every body is, of course, eager to reach the hard cash basis, but we are brought none the nearer it by delusions like that which has mistaken a fall in the gold premium for resumption. There will be time enough for shouting upon that subject when the Government and the banks begin to prepare for specie payments.

Gov. ALCORN's inaugural is the beginning of a new era in Mississippi politics. The Republicans who elected him fought their battle on broad and generous ground; and the language with which he enters upon his duties reveals a spirit and purpose which promise well for his administration. A Southern man, he rejoices at the restoration of civil government to his State. A representative Republican, he pledges himself to enforce the laws and uphold the guarantees furnished by reconstruction. WALKER in Virginia, ALCORN in Mississippi,—are types of the new statesmanship which reconstruction has given to the South.

The arrival, yesterday afternoon, of the missing steamer Smidt will scarcely relief to thousands of hearts. She left Bremen on the 22d of January, seven days before the City of Boston left Halifax, and had 200 passengers. She was forty-nine days out, and but little hope was entertained of her safe arrival. Renewed hopes are now entertained of the safety of the Inman steamer City of Boston. The Smidt reports steady easterly winds for six weeks, which would retard the Inman steamer, and if disabled, would prevent her from making port. We are encouraged to expect tidings from her by cable before long.

There seem to be no conclusive reasons why we should not have tunnels here as well as at Chicago. The North and East Rivers are getting to be almost as over crowded as Broadway, and the time is close at hand when they will be as much so. If half the transportation of New-York could be carried to and fro under water instead of over it, the convenience and profit would be enormous. The new tunnel at Chicago is to be ready for use July 1, 1871, and great hopes are entertained of its utility. It will be, to be sure, only 500 feet long; but what of that? The one through Mount Cenis is eight miles, and that of the Hoosac is five. Past achievements show that either of our great streams can be tunnelled, and the sooner the work is done the faster will be our metropolitan development. A suspension bridge over the Kill Von Kull is, we hear, determined upon. With a tunnel under the Hudson, the bankers and brokers of Staten Island could drive from their homes to their offices in Wall-street; a strange but by no means impracticable thing, and one that illustrates the novel possibilities in this wise of the future.

Commonly received notions of meteorology are often surprisingly inaccurate. Perhaps nine people out of ten, if asked whether most rain fall annually in New-York or London, would reply unhesitatingly in the latter. But the figures are 52 inches for London and 48.50 inches for New-York. The two extremes of considerable cities are St. Petersburg and Vera Cruz respectively; the mean rain fall in the first being 17.60 and in the second 183 inches per annum. In San Francisco, despite its "rainy season," the average fall is precisely that of London. It is said that the heaviest amount known to be received by any part of the world drops on the Khasia Hills to the north-west of Calcutta, and is equal to 600 inches annually. Rarely or never does rain descend on Tahiti, and so dry places without it as Juan Fernandez. There is not the least doubt that the rain-fall is measurably within the power of man to control; so that if the once famous Prof. HARE was mistaken as to means, he was quite right as to ends. Several splendid cotton crops in the West Indies have been almost ruined by

LONDON, March 11—9½ P. M.—The evening edition of the Times gives the following from the Roman frontier:

"On Monday a schema on infallibility was distributed to the members of the Council. It asserts that the Church possesses supreme and complete primacy, and that the principality over the universal Church was received with plenitude of power from the Lord himself by St. Peter, of whom the Pontiff is the successor. All questions of faith must be determined under that power, else the words of the Lord to Peter would be disregarded. This is proved by results. In the Apostolic See, Catholic and immaculate, the doctrine has always been fully maintained; consequently, 'we inculcate, with the concurrence of the Council, and define as a dogma of faith, that, thanks to Divine assistance, the Roman Pontiff, of whom it was said in the person of Peter by Christ, "I have prayed for all," cannot err when acting as supreme teacher of all Christians.' The schema defines what the Church must hold in faith and morals, and that the prerogative of Papal infallibility extends over the same matters to which the infallibility of the Church is applicable. 'If any should dare, which God forbid, to controvert the present definition, let him know that he departs from the true faith.'"

The Reply to the French Demand for Special Representation.

ROME, March 10, via PARIS, March 11.—The reply of the Pontifical Court to the last dispatch of Count DARU has been forwarded to Paris. It contests in emphatic terms the demand of the French Government to be represented in the Ecumenical Council. The Apostolic Nuncio to the French Court is charged at the same time to give assurances that the representative of France will be received with all the consideration due that power.

PARIS, March 11.—The Journal Francais asserts that there is nothing in the dispatches sent by Count DARU to Rome to create animosity between the French and Papal Courts.

BERLIN, March 11.—The North German Gazette says the claim made by the Pope to infallibility only shows how liable he is to error.

VIENNA, March 11.—The Vienna journals claim that the note recently forwarded to Rome by Baron VON BEUST was most emphatic in tone, and that the analysis of it made recently by the London Times does it no justice.

The Irish Land Bill—Debate in the House of Commons—Speech of Mr. Disraeli.

LONDON, March 11.—The debate on the Irish Land bill was continued in the House of Commons to-night. Mr. GREGORY and Lord ELCHO favored the bill with material reservations. Several Irish members followed, including Sir COLEMAN O'LOUGHLIN and Mr. COGAN in support of, and Mr. DOWNING against the measure. Mr. DISRAELI, on rising to speak, was received with cheers. He said he thought the Devon Commission had supplied data for the present debate. It had once been his opinion that the relation between landlord and tenant was simply a commercial one. The change in the treatment of this relation had caused discord and discontent previously unknown in Ireland. The bill on the subject introduced in Parliament in 1853 would have pacified the country and rendered the present legislation needless. That bill, continued Mr. DISRAELI, was referred to a Committee which adopted all but one vital provision, namely, that for the compensation of tenants for their improvements. That provision he then favored; now he opposed it, because the present bill assumed that all the improvements were due to the enterprise of the tenant and none to that of the landlord. He assented to the second reading of the bill, but declined to assent to its details. He could not favor the recognition it gave to the half understood Ulster customs, varying as they did with the boundaries of each estate. Mr. GLADSTONE followed. He criticised minutely the objections made to the details of the bill, and said that so far from promoting litigation, it offered a substantial remedy for the unhealthy state of affairs in Ireland. The tribunal provided by the bill would adjust the Ulster customs as the cases came up for settlement. On the whole, he considered that the bill gave a fixity to the tenure and security to the mind of the tenant-occupier of the soil, thus enabling him to pursue an honorable occupation in peace and safety. The bill was doubtless yet imperfect, and amendments would be fairly considered. In conclusion he urged its antagonists to avoid the responsibility of rejecting a measure offered them, and which they might amend whenever it needed amendment. Lively applause followed Mr. GLADSTONE'S speech, with which the debate was brought to a close. The House then proceeded to divide on the second reading of the bill, with the following result:

A Cargo of Spurious Tea—The American and British Water Boundaries—The Pacific Telegraph—The University Boat Race.

LONDON, March 11.—The House of Lords held a brief session to-day. The proceedings were unimportant. In the House of Commons Mr. LEFEVRE, Secretary of the Board of Trade, said that the Government had received information of the arrival of a cargo of spurious tea in England, but that it had since been re-exported. Mr. OTWAY, Under Secretary for the Department of Foreign Affairs, informed the House that the difficulty between the United States and Great Britain in regard to the water boundaries of their respective territories in North America had been referred to arbitrators. Sir STAFFORD NORTHCOTE inquired if it was true that the reports of Parliamentary proceedings for the country journals were often forwarded by express, instead of by telegraph. The Postmaster-General admitted that this was sometimes the case, and explained that the necessity of forwarding reports by express resulted from the competition of the news companies which was the fruit of low tolls. He said four news reports were now transmitted where one had hitherto been sent, while the general news was more voluminous than ever; and declared that the only remedy was in a combination of the newspapers. The Chambers of Commerce of Belfast and Glasgow have remonstrated against the American mail service and the Government mismanagement of the English telegraph system. Experts are dissatisfied with the practice of the Oxford boat crew. The opinion is general that Mr. HORSFOUL is not a good stroke. Both the Oxford and Cambridge crews are practicing regularly.

The Pierre Bonaparte Prosecution—Opinion of Victor Noir's Brother—The Prisoners at Sainte Pelagie.

PARIS, March 11.—M. LOUIS NOIR, a brother of VICTOR NOIR, who was killed by PRINCE PIERRE NAPOLEON BONAPARTE, publishes an interesting communication in the morning journals of this city today. He complains that he has not been permitted to know any thing of the prosecution [illegible] PRINCE; that neither he nor any one of his family [illegible] the body of their murdered relative [illegible] the police, and that the police [illegible] to be directed against his dead brother and not against the Prince.... Day before yesterday the cells of the prison of Sainte Pelagie were carefully searched by the authorities. This is the prison where those are confined who were accused of a conspiracy against the life and the life of the Emperor. One of the results of this search is the transfer of seventy-four prisoners to the Mazas Prison. MM. HENRI ROCHEFORT, GROUSSET and MOURAT are still detained in the Prison of Sainte Pelagie and are not allowed to see any visitors. The Magistrates today continued fourteen more persons in terms of imprisonment for participation in the disorders at Bellevile last month.... In the Corps Legislatif today, M. OLLIVIER explained that the political prisoners had been transferred to the Mazas prison because the small-pox had made its appearance in the prison of La Sainte Pélagie. The Government has commenced a prosecution against the Gaulois (newspaper) for publishing that part only of the act of accusation against Prince BONAPARTE which appeared in the London journals.... The chief editor of the Journal du Faubourg has been sentenced to eight months' imprisonment and a fine of 2,000 francs, and the publisher to six months' imprisonment with a fine of 1,000 francs, for offenses against the Emperor.

CUBA.

The Insurgents Hemmed in Near Guines—Independence Clubs—Opposition to Annexation—De Rodas and the Recent Murder.

HAVANA, March 11.—The insurgents under ARENCOMBRE, who are lingering in the neighborhood of Guines, came from Bejucal, whence they were driven by the troops. Their number is now reduced to seventy-five. They are completely surrounded and cannot escape. Of the original band, thirty-six have been killed since they entered the Guines jurisdiction. Dispatches from Gen. LONGO report that the rebel Gen. RELOYE has been driven from the jurisdiction of Villa Clara, and is now in the vicinity of Remedios. During his retreat the rebel General lost his correspondence, which contains much important information. It discloses the fact that the insurgent Generals HURTADO DEL VALLE, SALOME HERNANDEZ, and others, are forming "clubs of independence" hostile to all projects of annexation to the United States. DEL VALLE, in one of his letters, declares that annexation at the present moment would be an act of cowardice, denies that a change from the Government of Spain to that of the United States would prove a benefit to Cuba, asks what title the Americans have to Cuban gratitude, and bitterly complains of the Washington authorities for preventing the sailing of the reinforcements and cruisers for the Cubans, and for withholding arms and supplies which had been paid for. The correspondence throws no light on the question as to who now holds the chief command of the rebel forces, but it shows that Gen. AGRAMONTE has resigned, while Gen. FREDERICO CAVADO still holds his position in the army.... The Spanish steamer Pelayo recently sighted two schooners in the Bahama Channel, and as their decks were crowded with men in blue clothes, she gave chase. But the schooners made for the Bahama Banks, and the water being too shallow for the Pelayo, she gave up the pursuit, and headed for Havana. When last seen the schooners were making for the Cuban coast. Admiral MALCAMPO has gone in search of them..... The cholera has totally disappeared from Santo Spiritus..... Several journals of this city continue to assail Captain-General DE RODAS for his alleged connection with the Greenwaldth murder. These attacks are entirely unwarranted. DE RODAS worked unceasingly to bring the assassin to justice, and at last succeeded.... The members of the Masonic fraternity recently arrested continue in jail.

The Coal Duty in Nova Scotia—Annexation—The Caldwell Extradition Case.

HALIFAX, N. S., March 11.—Petitions to the Dominion Parliament for the imposition of a duty on American coal are in circulation. The anti-Confederation papers warn the people not to sign them, as it will be taken in justification for imposing duties on flour and salt, which would be adverse to the interests of Nova Scotia. The last meeting of the Annexation League was numerously attended. Two members of the Local Legislature were present.

TORONTO, Canada, March 11.—ROBT. B. CALDWELL was again brought before the Police Magistrate to-day. Consul-General DARE said the prisoner's offence was a crime against the Revenue laws of the United States. The limitation under which proceedings could be taken was five years. The counsel for the prisoner contended that no charge was made out against him in that the offence did not amount to the crime of forgery. Even if it did the prisoner could not be extradited, as the crime was created by an act passed subsequent to the Ashburton Treaty. The counsel for the prosecution maintained that the treaty provided for forgeries being extradited; that the United States could claim the extradition of a prisoner who had committed any of the offences named in the treaty, which had been committed in any particular State. The Magistrate will give his decision on Wednesday next.

ANOTHER ERIE ACCIDENT.

An Engine and Express Car Thrown Into the Delaware—A Fireman Instantly Killed.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., March 11.—At 5½ P. M. today, as the 10 A. M. express train from New-York was near Dickinson's Switch, about fifty miles to the west of this, in the Delaware Division, Erie Railroad, it ran off the track, and the locomotive and express car were thrown into the Delaware River. The fireman, CHAS. EATON, was instantly killed, and the engineer only saved his life by leaping from his engine. The express messenger was carried down the embankment in his car and into the river, but miraculously escaped with a few slight injuries. The accident was caused by a broken rail. The fireman, EATON, was twenty-six years of age, and was a member of the Hornellsville Firemen's Union.

Oil City Again Threatened with Destruction—Oil Tanks and Cars Burned—Narrow Escape at the City—Fire in Providence, R. I.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 11.—A large fire is burning in Oil City. The large oil tanks across the creek from the Gale House have exploded, and the oil is burning furiously. An entire train of oil cars is on fire.

OIL CITY, Penn., March 11.—The fire broke out at 10¾ o'clock A. M. at JOHN NEWHALL'S landing among the narrow gauge oil tank cars, and is supposed to have ignited from sparks from a passing broad-guage locomotive. Six cars, with their twelve wooden tanks, were consumed. Two or three of the cars were full of oil. MUNHALL'S large tank, containing over ten thousand barrels, was within thirty feet of the fire, and became so hot that gas issued from the top, making a large sheet of flame. There were six cars containing oil surrounding the fire. The platforms and leading pipes were torn away, and by great exertions on the part of the public and firemen a most serious fire was prevented. The cars were totally destroyed. Further than this the damage was slight. There was no wind. Families for a great distance got their furniture ready for removal, as this locality was ravaged by fire two years ago. By noon the danger was passed, and at 1 o'clock the fire was out.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 11.—A house on Public-street, owned by Mr. STONE and occupied by MAUDLEY HORTON, grocer, was burned at midnight. The loss is $2,000, covered by insurance.

Hon. W. H. Seward at Auburn—Enthusiastic Reception.

AUBURN, N. Y., March 11.—Hon. WILLIAM H. SEWARD arrived in this city at 9 o'clock tonight. Having peremptorily declined to accept a public reception on his return from his extended journey, he was [illegible] by a torchlight procession of his fellow-citizens, accompanied by a brass band, to his residence. He proceeded to his residence, promising the Comrades that perhaps at some future time he would give his reminiscences on account of his tour. He is in the enjoyment of excellent health.

The New-Hampshire Election—General Majority in 1869 Twice Reduced.

CONCORD, N. H., March 11.—Returns have been received from 222 towns, giving STEARNS 24,834, BERRY 22,132, FLINT 7,324, HARROWER 1,167. STEARNS' majority over all is 1,376. Five towns which last year polled 90 votes—15 Republican and 75 Democratic, remain to be heard from. The Senate stands six Republicans and one Democrat. In five districts there is no choice. In the House the Republicans will have about fifty majority.

ALBANY.

Brooklyn Water Board—Pneumatic and Arcade Railroads—Passage of the Excise Bill—Progress of the New Charter—Professional Practices of the "Young Democracy."

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Friday, March 11, 1870.

Both Houses were engaged in Committee of the Whole on general orders today, and nothing transpired of interest, except that in the Assembly Mr. FIERDS moved a "call of the House" to get votes to pass a little party bill of his legislating two Croton Loan Commissioners out of office, and got beaten for his pains, several members of his own party voting against it, and one of them, Mr. KIERNAN denouncing the bill as a petty affair unworthy of a Democratic Legislature.

THE BROOKLYN WATER AND SEWERAGE COMMISSION.

Senator MURPHY this morning introduced the bill agreed upon in caucus of the Brooklyn delegation last evening reorganizing the Water and Sewerage Commission that was created last year. The bill was referred to the Committee on Municipal Affairs and reported back without amendment in five minutes, and now takes its place on the general orders. It provides that the two Commissioners whose terms expire in 1870 and 1875 (FOWLER and NORTHROP) shall expire on the 1st of July, 1874, and that the other two whose terms expire in 1877 and 1878 (KNOSELLA and BURNS) shall expire on the 1st of July next. After 1876 the Commission is to consist of three instead of four members, and they are to be appointed by the Mayor and Board of Aldermen. Hereafter the Commission is prohibited from laying any kind of pavement differing from that already existing in the street proposed to be repaired, without the consent of a majority of property owners on the street, and no more money shall be spent in street repairs than is appropriated by the Common Council.

THE PNEUMATIC RAILROAD.

The bill introduced yesterday to amend the charter of the "Beach Pneumatic Transit Company" so as to make it a pneumatic railroad for passengers, and allowing New-York, Brooklyn and Westchester County to subscribe $750,000 per mile to the stock, was reported from the Senate Committee this morning "for consideration." Members who have examined the experiment of a pneumatic railroad now operating under Broadway, appear to be favorably impressed with its practicability.

THE ARCADE RAILWAY.

The bill for the incorporation of this road, which has been so much talked of and written about for the last two years, was introduced in the Senate today by Mr. GREEN. A duplicate of it was also introduced by unanimous consent in the Assembly, by Mr. KIERNAN. This is the most popular scheme with the members of the Legislature that was ever introduced for a steam railroad in New-York City, and had not the pneumatic project diverted attention to what many consider a still better scheme, the Arcade bill would pass the Legislature with scarcely a dissenting vote. The Pneumatic Company appear to have got possession of a portion of the street which the Arcade proposes to occupy, and should both bills pass there would doubtless be a collision that would involve a good deal of litigation unless the two companies came to a compromise and combined their forces. The "Arcade" is backed by more capital than any City road ever chartered by the Legislature. The following names are among the corporators in the bill: Melville C. Smith, Origen Vanderbergh, N. B. Le Bau, Henry Clews, Charles F. Livermore, John A. Griswold, Ed. M. Clymer, E. E. Hasard, Jr., Nath. Cheney, W. C. Church, S. W. Hopkins, R. D. McGraw, Samuel Barton, L. H. Ingersoll, D. D. Badger, Frank Work, Augustus Schell, B. F. Dunning, C. Francis Bates, Geo. H. Fry, Martin D. Greene, Samuel O. Bigelow and Geo. H. Brown.

PASSAGE OF THE EXCISE BILL.

The Senate Excise bill, as amended by the Assembly Judiciary Committee, came up as the special order in the House at 12 M. today, and was put on its final passage without debate. It received sixty-seven votes, or two more than was required to pass it. Mr. FRANKLIN, of Erie County, was the only Republican who voted for it, and Messrs PEARSALL of Queens, PEASE of Lewis, and MARTINS of Warren, were the only Democrats who voted against it. Mr. PEARSALL, in asking to be excused from voting, said he could not sanction by his vote any law that permitted the sale of liquors on Sunday. Mr. FRANKLIN, who is a teetotaler and temperance lecturer, gave as a reason for voting aye, that he represented a German constituency, and was committed to vote in favor of lager on Sundays, however much it might conflict with his private views. Mr. HUSTED, in explaining his vote, said, or undertook to say, that he represented a constituency that did not demand of him the sacrifice of his opinions on moral questions so long as he represented the principles of his party. The Speaker saw fit to construe this as a reflection on FRANKLIN'S remarks, and called Mr. HUSTED to order. Being asked to state wherein the member from Westchester was out of order, the Speaker said he was lecturing a fellow member. This Mr. HUSTED denied, and proceeded to repeat the words used by him, when he was again called to order, and finally ordered to take his seat, which he did. The amendments made to the Senate bill relate principally to the Sunday liquor clause, and were made to satisfy the country members. The clause, as it stands now, reads as follows, and the public can judge whether it prohibits the sale of lager or any other liquor on Sundays in any incorporated city:

SEC. 5. Licenses granted, as in this act provided, shall not authorize any person or persons to expose for sale, or sell, give away or dispose of, any strong or spirituous liquor, wine, ale, or beer on any day between the hours of 1 and 5 o'clock in the morning or on any day upon which a general or special election shall be held, within one-quarter of a mile from the place where such election shall be held on Sunday. And all places licensed as aforesaid, shall be closed and kept closed on Sundays and election days and between the hours aforesaid, on all other days. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent hotels from receiving and otherwise entertaining the traveling public upon Sundays, or from allowing from persons to express on that day from any place so licensed as aforesaid, or from preventing the sale of lager beer within the limits of any city and in the counties of New-York and Kings on that day in any public garden or other place, not in public view, licensed as aforesaid. Nothing in this act contained shall authorize the granting of licenses for the sale or giving away of intoxicating liquors upon any of the Indian reservations of this state.

The double-headed provision in the above, which allows the sale of liquor on election days a quarter of a mile away from the election, and at the same time compels all liquor places to keep closed on election days, was pointed out to the House by Mr. SELKRIGG, but it was too late to amend. It is on a par with the provision that pretends to forbid the sale of spirituous liquors on Sundays, and at the same time requires that there shall be "free ingress or egress" to all liquor saloons on those days. The bill will now have to go back to the Senate, where it may be further amended.

PROGRESS OF THE CHARTER.

The City delegation had another caucus on their new charter this morning, fifteen members only out of the twenty-one being present. Several amendments were proposed and adopted, and Col. M. C. MURPHY was deputed to report [illegible] Committee of the Whole [illegible] the purpose of [illegible] the City [illegible] by a crowd of citizens who were particularly interested in the measure, and who crowded the room to its full extent. It will be introduced to-night or tomorrow morning. The amendments made to it in the caucus this morning break out the only good features it had left, and leave it without a single paragraph calculated to commend it to public favor. First and foremost the section prohibiting Senators or Assemblymen from holding any City or County office, or any man from holding more than one office under the charter, is stricken out. It was found that every member of the New-York delegation, except Mr. VERNON, the Republican, near half at least one office and some of them two or three in the City, and of course it would not do to deprive the State of the legislative wisdom and experience of these men in future or to cut off their little sinecure income. Secondly, the section requiring two members of the Tax Commission to be Undersheriffs was stricken out. There was a possibility if this section stood, that two respectable citizens might get into the new Commission—an event not to be tolerated by the anti-Ring reformers. Third, the clause permitting some of the officers of the present Tax Commission to continue in office was amended so as to legislate everybody out except the men. Fourth, a new bureau was added to the Sanitary Depot, to be called the Bureau for the Inspection of Meat. This is intended for JIM IRVING, who, by the way, would be the best man to fill the office if it is to be created. Fifth, the term of office of the Tax Commissioners is extended from two to four years, the same as that of the Controller who appoints them. Sixth, the City Chamberlain is permitted to collect his commissions on the taxes received by him, which he was prohibited from doing in the original draft of the charter.

BEWARE OF PICKPOCKETS.

Since the irruption of the "Young Democracy" from New-York to engineer the new charter through the Legislature, it has become necessary to increase the placards—"beware of pickpockets"—around the hotels and the Capitol. Senator BRADLEY'S wife last night had her watch stolen from her room at the Delavan while at supper, and yesterday an empty pocket-book which had been "gutted" was found in the lobbies of the Capitol. A Meeting of the Canal Board—Enforcing the New Act.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 11.—At a meeting of the Canal Board, held today, resolutions were passed calling upon the Canal Commissioners in report by the 15th inst. the condition of the State canals, and the repair contracts unperformed, with a view of canceling the same; and, also, a complete plan for superintendence and management, in order to put the canals in good repair for the opening of navigation, and to carry into full effect the new act.

Prison Management—Proposed Amendment to the State Constitution.

ALBANY, March 11.—Mr. CAULDWELL, from the Senate Committee on Prisons, reported the following to that body yesterday:

Resolved, If the Assembly concur, that the following amendment to the Constitution be proposed for adoption to the people of the State, to wit:

First—There shall be a Board of Managers of Prisons, to consist of five persons, to be appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, who shall hold office for ten years, except that the five first appointed shall in such manner as the Legislature may direct, be so classified that the term of one person only shall expire at the end of each two years during the first ten years, and vacancies in the office of Manager thus or otherwise occurring shall be filled in the same manner.

Second—The Board shall have the charge and superintendency of State Prisons, and shall possess such powers and perform such duties in respect to county jails and other penal and reformatory institutions in this State as the Legislature may prescribe.

Third—The Board shall appoint a Secretary, who shall be removable at their pleasure, and who shall perform such duties as the Legislature or the Board may prescribe, and shall receive a salary to be determined by law.

Fourth—The members of the Board shall receive no compensation other than reasonable traveling and other expenses incurred while engaged in the performance of official duty.

Fifth—The Board shall appoint the Warden or chief officer, physician, chaplain, and clerk or financial officer of each State prison, who shall have power to remove them for cause after an opportunity to be heard on written charges. All other officers of each prison shall be appointed by the Warden thereof and be removable at his pleasure.

Sixth—The Governor may remove either of the managers for misconduct, incompetency or neglect of duty after opportunity to be heard on written charges.

The foregoing amendment shall go into effect the first Monday in January after its adoption by the people, after which date section 4 of article 6 of the Constitution shall be null and void.

On motion of Mr. BARNES the resolutions were referred to the Committee of the Whole.

The Ladies' Sciatic Club of New-York recently changed their Sciatica from weak and frail to Hair Preservatives and Purple Panaches. They declared that where nature had not endowed them with beauty, it was their right—yes, their duty—to seek it where they could. So they all voted that MAGNOLIA BALM overcame Sallowness, Rough Skin and Blemishes, and gave to the complexion a most distinguished (fashionable) and marble-like appearance, (dangerous to men, no doubt;) and that LYON'S KATHAIRON made the Hair grow thick, soft and awful pretty, and moreover prevented it from turning gray. If the proprietors of these articles did not send the sisters an invoice, they are not smart.

GARIBALDI'S NOVEL.
THE RULE OF THE MONK; or, Rome in the Nineteenth Century. By Gen. GARIBALDI. 8vo, paper, 75 cents.
"The novel by Garibaldi will, of course, excite universal attention. The scene is laid in Rome—that Rome where the Jesuits reign supreme and corrupt, have corrupted society, and by a combination with the authorities of priestly rule so terrible that none dare to blow. The account upon the priesthood is so fearfully true to many scenes in many countries. Rich when the author says that the investigation of the Roman convents revealed certain impurities, he adds, simply, Garibaldi knew them. The book is a true Italian romance; and as the work of that man who has taken so conspicuous a part in recent Italian history, it is as great as well as a book."
II.
PRINCE OF WALES' VISIT TO THE EAST.
JOURNAL OF A VISIT to Egypt, Constantinople, the Crimea, Greece, &c., in the Suite of the Prince and Princess of Wales. By Hon. Mrs. WILLIAM GREY. Illus. cloth, $1.50.
"Perfectly simple and unaffected"—Spectator.
"It is rare that one has the privilege of travelling with royalty, and witnessing how kings and princes conduct themselves when relieved from the fatigues of court etiquette. The privilege vouchsafed to the general reader in this book, which would be totally fully entertaining in consequence of the peculiar circumstances which called it forth. Mrs. Grey was a companion de voyage of the Princess of Wales in her recent Eastern tour, and kept a fully journal of their experiences for her family friends at home. She writes with a colloquial freshness, and with an innocence of any possibility of future publication, which gives to her pages a peculiar charm. The volume abounds at once the most charming insight into the interior life of royalty, and a very graphic picture of the Orient, a book which, without the least affectation of fine writing, possesses a good deal which is of unusual excellence by reason of its very simplicity."
III.
SO RUNS THE WORLD AWAY.
A NOVEL.
By Mrs. A. D. SYNGE,
Author of "Gardenhurst."
8vo, paper, 50 cents.
From the London Times.
Of all the rising brood of novelists, Mrs. Stoddart holds out the most promise. * * * She has great power both of pathetic and humorous expression; her descriptions are always sharp and clear, sometimes brilliant; her characters are generally life-like—one of them in her new novel is even masterly, and she shows a perfect command of very difficult situations, in which the strongest feelings are brought into play. * * * The novel will be most remembered for the very lively portraiture which it contains of a thoroughgoing flirt—Lady Diana Merton. She is not the heroine—she is rather the villain of the story; but her portrait is drawn with so much forcefulness, so much tact, and so much humor, that it becomes the principal figure in the work, and fixes itself in memory as a living reality. There are few characters in recent fiction that are so perfectly alive as this, and there is none more so. The woman really lives and breathes before us, described with the truest touches in all her contradictory attributes, that render the portrait as subtle as it is amusing, and as once detestable and fascinating. * * * Since the days of Becky Sharp there has appeared no satirical picture of a woman equal to this one for minuteness of dissection and for vigor of representation. * * * The work is full of little pictures closely observed, and reflected in epithets generally apt, often rich with meaning, and almost always bright and clear."
From the Examiner and London Review.
There are abundant indications throughout this novel of the presence of a shrewd and observant nature, quick to the perception of humor, not disinclined to a subdued kind of sarcasm, and most obviously aiming at a true and faithful interpretation of character. * * * Clever, interesting and readable.

THE HISTORY OF ENGLAND.
By GEORGE BANCROFT.
2 vols., crown 8vo, cloth, $4.
These two volumes complete the work, bringing it down to the death of Mr. Adams, the author's friend, during the administration of President Polk. One-half of the work is occupied with the history of Mary Queen of Scots, and the unfortunate fate of her descendant, with that of Queen Elizabeth, are presented with their extraordinary vividness and graphic power, which entitles Mr. Froude to rank as a historian with Motley, Prescott and Macaulay.
CRITICAL NOTICE.

SLANDERING A WOMAN

PROFOUNDLY WEIGHED

This case was resumed yesterday, before Judge Brennan and a jury, in Part II. of the Superior Court. Miss Moore, the plaintiff, was cross-examined by Mr. Samuel J. Glassy, counsel for the defendant. She admitted that she had been on friendly terms with the defendant; that he had visited her while she had been spending her vacation two seasons, one season in Staten Island and another on New-Jersey, and that he was there but for a day or two without any invitation from the plaintiff, and against her wishes.

The examination of the lady Dr. McCLINTOCK (whose name was attached to the certificate of marriage, instead of Mr. Ridgeway, as stated yesterday,) was then read on behalf of the defendant. In his testimony Dr. McClintock stated that he was unable to identify Miss Moore, the plaintiff, as the lady he married, but did identify Mr. Ridgeway, the defendant, as the man who participated in the ceremony.

The witnesses in the marriage were Mrs. McCLINTOCK and the doctor's step-daughter, Miss MARY EMORY. Mrs. McCLINTOCK could neither remember the marriage or identify the parties. Miss EMORY could neither recollect the marriage or identify the parties.

MARY JANE HOLLIS testified to having been introduced by the defendant to plaintiff at her brother's house in Milburn, N. J., in the year 1869; that the plaintiff was then introduced by the defendant as his wife.

A number of witnesses were examined showing that for a long time after the alleged marriage had taken place the defendant and plaintiff had been much in each other's company, and had attended church together. One witness testified that while the defendant was encamped on Hart's Island the plaintiff came there and passed as the wife of defendant. This testimony was, however, sought to be explained away upon the ground that only private rooms were by the rules allowed to visit the soldiers in camp. A number of letters from plaintiff to defendant were then read, some of which contained sentiments of quite ardent affection, after which, the defendant was placed upon the stand. He swore positively to the marriage having taken place at the time and place recited by the witnesses, and detailed minutely the route taken by himself and the defendant in going to Doctor McCLINTOCK's house, and the circumstances attending the marriage. He further testified, that shortly after the marriage, and at intervals during the three succeeding years he cohabited with the plaintiff as her husband; that at no time between the marriage and the time when he uttered this alleged slander, did the plaintiff disavow the marriage; that some time previous to making the statement which forms the substance of the action, he (defendant,) had told his sister and another person to whom he stated that the marriage had taken place. The defendant was closely cross-examined by Mr. Chauncey Shaffer, but without shaking his direct testimony. A letter was put in evidence written by the defendant to the plaintiff, in which he accuses himself of perjury in having made the affidavit denying the marriage, and complaining that plaintiff (plaintiff) to destroy or return it to him. In rebuttal, Mrs. Elwood testified that on the day when the marriage was sworn by defendant to have taken place at 7½ P. M., the witness was visiting plaintiff, and remained with her from 9 o'clock in the morning until between 9 and 10 o'clock in the evening, when plaintiff accompanied the witness to the cars. Several other witnesses were examined, who flatly contradicted the defendant on many material points. Much of the testimony given is unfit for publication, and much offered was excluded for the same reason, and for irrelevancy.

The trial will be concluded on Monday.

POLICE TRIALS.

Double Shuffle Patrolling—Mistake of a Fuddled Citizen—The Lost Watch Mystery.

Commissioner Brennan, yesterday, investigated a large number of cases of policemen who were charged with infractions of the rules and improper conduct, the calendar being made up principally of charges of being off post, and late at roll-call. Some of the cases, however, were of graver character, and among them was that of Patrolman Patrick Dempsey, of the Twenty-second Precinct, who was not only off post, but was in a liquor saloon where he was whiling away the weary hours of his watch by drinking, singing and dancing, in which he was joined by Patrolman Green, of the same Precinct. Roundman Ross, who made the charge, swore positively to all these amusements being indulged in, but the accused endeavored to convince the Commissioner they had been engaged in the performance of public duty, in which they had so little success that the case was referred to the Board.

Patrolman Wm. H. Glanding, of the Twenty-seventh Precinct, was arraigned on a charge of being drunk and robbing one Hugh McMahon. Wm. Stone testified to such treatment upon the part of the officer, and positively that when he first met Glanding in Greenwich-street he was walking quietly along on his way home. But the officer proved by his own evidence, and that of several others, that he found McNicholl, lying in the gutter at the corner of Greenwich-street and Rio-alley stupid, with his head and neck covered with blood, which had oozed from a cut in the head, apparently received by falling upon the large rock where he was found. This testimony decided the case in favor of the officer, and the charge was dismissed.

Patrolman Martin Cowen, of the Twentieth Precinct, was arraigned on a charge of robbing the dead body of Thomas J. Flynn, found drowned at the foot of Thirty-fourth-street, North River, of a gold watch. The body, it will be remembered, was discovered by two citizens, who called the attention of Officer McQuade, of the Twentieth Precinct, to it, at which time a watch and chain were upon it, and they remained when McQuade turned it over to Cowen, but when the inquest was held the watch had disappeared. The accused denied that he had taken it, or knew anything concerning its loss, and sought to prove by a number of witnesses that he did not leave the precinct for the night, and during the entire time it was in his custody. Without the mystery of the lost watch being solved, the case was adjourned until this morning, when further testimony will be taken.

The Castlie-Gould Bigamy Case—The Woman Held for Examination.

An examination was held yesterday by Justice Hogan, at the Tombs, in the case of Catharine Castlie, accused of bigamy. Catharine caused the arrest of John Castlie, her husband, for abandonment, a few days ago, and it was then alleged that the woman had married two husbands, both of whom are yet alive. The first husband, Alfred Gould, was a sailor, and had been away to sea for several years, only recently returning to find his wife married again.

James Gould testified that he married the accused in November, 1864, in a register's office near the City Hall, and lived with her for one or five months in the house of Thomas O'Connor, at No. 19 Pearl-street; Catharine was married under the name of Kelly; four or five weeks after the marriage Gould enlisted in the navy, and left his wife living in Pearl-st., and he admitted on cross-examination that he deserted shortly after, and enlisted in the navy, and was visited by his wife on board the Lackawanna frigate, and was released from the Captain's guard, he was transferred to the gunboat Agnes, and sailed to Valparaiso, and subsequently served on the same of our Turkish vessel, and was absent about four years; he frequently saw his wife while in the navy, and when he was landed in California in 1866, and then heard of his wife's second marriage; six weeks ago he came to New-York and called on Catharine's mother, who directed him to O'Connor's boarding-house in Greenwich-street, and there he found the accused, when she recognized him. The cross-examination of the witness proved unimportant, he being rather confused as to dates.

There was very little other evidence to show the first marriage, yet the Magistrate decided to hold the accused for examination, and proposes to take the case up to-day. Catharine went home with her baby and Gould was sent to the House of Detention.

Brooklyn House Rents and Real Estate.

The engagements for the forthcoming May term fall to be made this year at a somewhat critical time. The readjustment of prices being expected to keep pace with the decline in gold, a general uncertainty has arisen in the public mind as to how the nominal values of the year are to be fixed. Boarding-house keepers begin to feel that a reduction of board must shortly be conceded, and they are naturally looking to their landlords for a similar reduction in rent. Tenants who depend upon salaries or the profits of business feel that they are equally entitled to find the value of dwellings follow the general contraction that appears to be imminent. To the general demand for reduced rates of rent the house agents of Brooklyn have so far met with time given almost invariable refusals. In the suburbs some concessions have been made, as there exists a tendency to seek residences in the more central districts of the city, but should the demand justify expectation it is scarcely probable that any decided reduction will be made.

As to the probabilities of demand, it is difficult as yet to form an accurate opinion. A considerable influx of tenants is expected from New-York, and it is extremely likely that the class of houses ranging from $400 to $700, which, practically, does not exist on the opposite side of the East River, will find occupants enough to maintain them at present rates. From $700 up to $1,200 the range of applicants is more limited, and an average reduction of five per cent. will, we believe, have to be conceded on this class. For the brown stone fronts ranging from $1,500 to $2,000, and situated at a reasonable distance from the ferries, there exists a good demand, and but few concessions may be expected from their proprietors. Unless in a few exceptional cases,

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

NEW-YORK.

A gentleman of this City, who like many others took advantage of the first day of the season to visit the trout streams on Long Island, returned with a handsome "catch." In the morning, while antipicating a delicious breakfast, he was informed that his trout could not be kept in the pan, and, repairing to the kitchen, he fished the trout jumping out of the pan, repeating the evolution as often as they were replaced. The gentleman suggested that the cook place a pan of water in place of pan in the cook with the trout. When this was done, the trout immediately disappeared, and became and only all that any cook could desire, but all that anybody else desired was the trout. Mr. Winston used to say that he should an oyster chalk of matches, smoking without matches, so he came said while, was this method so perfect.

The annual exhibition of the Eighth Ward Union Sabbath School, in Ludlow-st., under the auspices of the Children's Aid Society, came off yesterday morning. A large company of ladies and gentlemen were present during the exercises. The examination was conducted by Mr. C. L. BRACE and Mr. SKINNER. The scholars showed considerable proficiency in the studies they had pursued, and seemed as apt in answering the questions propounded as children of their age usually are. The school is in charge of Miss A. BLODGETT and Mrs. A. FISH as teachers.

At the monthly meeting of the Union League Club held on Thursday evening, an amendment to the by-laws was adopted fixing the limit of resident membership at one thousand.

The "Supreme Lodge of the World," Knights of Pythias, reassembled yesterday. The thanks of the body were tendered to the Grand Lodge of the State of Pennsylvania for the charter plate presented. The report of the Committee on Conclaves, recommending the expulsion of all conclavers from this Supreme Body was then taken up, and this being one of the most important questions before the body, elicited considerable debate, and the main portion of the afternoon was taken up by the debate. It was decided that when this body adjourns it adjourn to meet in the City of Philadelphia, Penn., in March, 1871. A recess was then taken until 7½ P. M. when the question on conclaves was again taken up.

Union Republican Association of the Sixteenth Assembly District.

The Union Republican Association of the Sixteenth Assembly District last night resolved that the public officials in this City be notified that whatever share of the public patronage they may consider the Sixteenth Assembly District entitled to shall be given through the Association and to members resident and voting in the district. The President then read the names of about thirty-six employes in the Custom-house and Post-office whose appointment has been credited to the district. Among the names of employes in the Custom-house one or two were claimed by members of the Association to be residents of Brooklyn, and one was represented as being a Democrat. Among the appointees in the Custom-house, several were stated to reside out of the district, one being in fact out of Long Island, in Manhattanville. The entire list was referred to the Committee on Membership.

The President stated that the Committee on Patronage having sought appointments in public office for several members of the Association, were informed that the district had received more than its share of appointments already. It was not, he said, the intention to interfere with the appointment of any deserving Republican, but he was well aware, as were other members of the Association, that appointments had been made and credited to the district where the parties receiving it not only did not live in the district, but were undermining our members of the party, and as men. It was therefore, he said, important that the Association should take proper steps in relation to the matter, and for this purpose the subject had been brought to the attention of the Association, and he desired not that the Committee on Patronage would give due attention to having justice done to the Association.

After some further unimportant business, the meeting adjourned. A petition to Congress in opposition to granting public lands to corporations was presented to the Association, and was officially indorsed by it, and signed by a large number of its members.

The Horse Market.

Great things were looked for in this branch of trade by the dealers, as, although the sales were slow on Wednesday last, it was chiefly attributed to the unfavorable state of the weather. The roads were bad, and the risks of travel thereby increased; therefore fewer horses came to New-York City than had been expected. Messrs. TITUS & COMAN, of No. 153 East Twenty-fourth-street, report that, after ransacking the country, they daily find it more difficult to obtain able, showy harness horses. They have now on sale four superior black four-in-hand team horses, 16 hands high, 6 years old, fast and gentle. They are all got by Black Hawk, stand sixteen and a quarter hands high, are seven years old, with good knee action, and are excellent travelers. In the same stable are a team of trotters—a black gelding, got by Young Columbus, and a gray mare by Ethan Allen, seven years old. They trot together in 2:40, and are quite a gentleman's turn-out. Passing on, we find that J. BRADY has sold 30 work horses, ranging from $100@$200 ⅌ head, ages from 6 years to seven years old, trade good. T. S. WHITSON & SONS, No. 141 East Twenty-fourth-street, sold for a young work horse, imported from Canada, price from $250@$350, ages from five years to eight years old, height from 15½ hands to 17½ hands. Crossing the street, we enter W. H. SAUNDERS & SONS' stables, and we find three twenty-first-class trotters. Among the lot are Belle of Clyde, gotby Rattler, and Western New-York, got by Nonpareil. These two last mentioned animals are in grand form for this time of the year, and promise well for the coming season. Their neatly kept boxes attest the care and good judgment which Mr. SAUNDERS lives, as also the gentle, reliable temperament of his mates. These boxes are hung around with spare clothing, and although the occupants are quite free, not a fold is displaced. All speaks good order and excellence. Their stable companions must be casualty, or satisfaction from whose desirous of purchasing good, reliable horses.

From week to week we propose giving our readers short reports of the state of the trade in horses in this City. To-day we sum up thus: Strong work horses in demand at remunerative prices. Showy, large teams for family use, much sought after; supply not equal to the demand. The season not yet open for the sale of trotters.

Plymouth Church Prayer-Meeting—The Theory of Prayer.

The prayer-meeting at Plymouth Church last evening was of more than common interest. It appears that a certain young man of good parentage and position is far gone in the ways of the dissipation of city life. Some of his friends appealed on his behalf for the prayers of Plymouth Church. Prayers were accordingly offered for the young man, although Mr. McKAY, one of the leading members of the church, said he could see no way by which he could pray for a person whose whom they knew nothing.

Mr. BEECHER, in a few plain and practical remarks, gave his views in regard to the nature and object of prayer. He said the entire scheme in regard to prayer might be compared to the relation of a child with its parents. A mother would not forget her child, and a father unless he had too much pride, would listen to the story of a son's misdoings. So it was with God, whose heart is not of stone. The reverend gentleman read the first part of the eighteenth chapter of Luke, in regard to the unjust Judge, who feared not God, nor regarded man, and made it a text for some interesting remarks tending to show that all supplication to God must not only be earnest and persistent, but long continued, the same as that of the widow who finally succeeded with the unjust Judge.

Convention of Irish Societies—Preparations for St. Patrick's Day.

The Convention met last evening for the last time previous to the procession on St. Patrick's Day; the President, Mr. THOMAS KERRIGAN, in the chair.

Little more was done than to receive reports from Committees. The Committee to invite Judge BRENNAN to ride in an open barouche, reported that he accepted the invitation with gratitude, the more especially, too, as the 17th of March was the birthday of his late beloved mother, who, had she lived to see the day, would have been proud of the honor paid to him. Very Rev. Father CORRIGAN, of Father Mathew's Church, Cork, Ireland, was invited to ride in an open barouche on the occasion.

The Grand Marshal of the St. Peter's M. B. and B. Society and Marshals of Temperance Societies of New-Brighton requested permission to join the procession. The matter was referred to Grand Marshal JAMES REILLY, with instruction to give the Societies a position.

Serious Charges Against a Justice.

Justice JOHN WHITE, of Hoboken, was held by Justice FORDEMEYER yesterday in $4,000 bail to answer a charge preferred against him by one JOHN KEUSLER. KEUSLER alleges that he recently arrived in Hoboken from a French port, having in his possession the sum of $1,900 in gold. He had no sooner set foot upon ground than he was taken into custody under a warrant issued by Justice WHITE, charging him with having some time ago eloped with Mrs. MORITZ. When he was taken before WHITE, the Justice required him to deliver the money up to him. He accoded. Some days afterward the matter was settled and Mr. KEUSLER thinking he had paid the return of his money the Justice refused to deliver it. Upon affidavit being made to these facts, a warrant was issued for the arrest of the Justice.

Peace Between the Erie and Albany and Susquehanna Railroads.

The long and bitter struggle between the Erie and Ramsey parties, for the control of the Albany and Susquehanna Road, has been brought to a conclusion. Highly satisfactory to all concerned, by the execution of a perpetual lease of the "bone of contention" to the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company. The advantages of this arrangement are as great to each of the contending powers, that much regret is expressed that it was not entered into before. The interests of the Delaware and Hudson and Erie Companies are identical as regards this line, and the relations between these corporations in all respects being of a most friendly nature, there is every prospect of the business being operated harmoniously and profitably in the future. It has all along been admitted that [illegible]

The Woman Health Protection Association Meeting.

In explanation of some statements made in the Times yesterday morning, with reference to the safety of the building, it is but just to the officers of the Association to state that they, of course, a full investigation into the condition of their building, and that Mr. McGREGOR will shortly make a thorough examination of the defective parts. The architect, Mr. HAMBURG, is capable of sustaining a weight of 80 pounds. With reference to the breaking of the glass, it appears that a servant girl, with strong musical tastes, placed herself on the skylight in order to hear the music, and the only wonder is that she did not fall bodily through. It certainly was a piece of unpardonable carelessness, and might have been attended with dangerous results. Mr. McGREGOR's report will, doubtless, prove satisfactory to all concerned.

Heavy Embezzlement from a Philadelphia Dry Goods House—Arrest of their Book-keeper.

At 11 o'clock last night Detectives CARROLL and STRATFORD, of the Jersey City Police, arrested JOSEPH CUNNINGHAM, aged 30 years, recently book-keeper in the employ of the extensive dry goods firm of HOUSE, COLLADY & CO., corner of Broad and Chestnut streets, Philadelphia, on a charge of embezzling over $1,000 from his employers. CUNNINGHAM had been in the employ of the firm for seven years, and they placed the most implicit faith in his integrity. Within a few months past the firm were led to suspect that CUNNINGHAM was leading a fast life, and consequently discharged him from their employ in the forepart of January. Shortly after a discrepancy in the cash account, amounting to $300, was discovered, and upon investigation it was found that CUNNINGHAM had appropriated a money order for that amount to his own use. This led to further investigation, when it was discovered that CUNNINGHAM had been in the habit of, over a period of three years, during which time he had, as is alleged, robbed the firm of over $7,000. Immediately after being discharged, CUNNINGHAM left Philadelphia and was finally traced to Jersey City, where the detectives succeeded in effecting his arrest last night. He is accused, has lived in Jersey City high standing and has highly respectable and wealthy relatives residing in Trenton.

Correction.

To the Editor of The New-York Times:

In your this morning's issue there is an account of a meeting of property holders on First-avenue, held to protest against the paving of that street with wooden pavement. The kind of pavement for which there has been an ordinance passed to pave First-avenue is the Nicolson, as stated, but is an infirm experiment called the "Robbins Excelsior pavement," of which there has been none laid in the City.
